

Evening Telegraph's Special Centennial Edition to Land On Doorsteps With Big Thud

Each Newspaper Will Weigh Four Pounds; 28 Tons of Newsprint Will Be Needed

Home subscribers to the Dixon Evening Telegraph are going to have 28 tons of newsprint tossed on their collective front porches on the evening of May 1.

That's the date when this newspaper's giant centennial edition will roll off the presses commemorating 100 years of publishing history in the Rock River valley.

How to distribute this record-breaking issue of 270 pages already has the Evening Telegraph's circulation department buried in worries.

Each newspaper, the largest single edition ever published in the middle west, will weigh four pounds! That's about 16 times the weight of a regular newsday issue.

One Million Words

It is estimated that more than one million words will be contained in this historic publication. That's equivalent to 20 book-sized novels.

It is also estimated that the newsprint will be needed to print this 270-pager will reach from Dixon to somewhere near Jackson, Miss., or Toronto, Canada.

Cost of the newsprint alone—for one newspaper—will be about 30 cents. Mailing charges to the farthest zones—at the scaled-down newspaper rate—will approximate 35 cents!

That's just an idea of some of the problems confronting The Evening Telegraph staff members as they view the goal they set out to reach last summer.

Printing the 270-page edition will require many hours. Almost two-thirds of the publication now is ready for the presses. That means that type has been cast, page proofs taken and corrected, and plates of the pages molded.

Mats Now Filled

The matrices (mats) from which the plates are molded, are now filed, awaiting the hour when the press department employs receive the "go-ahead" for their portion of the mammoth job.

The press operation will mean the employment of extra help to snatch the freshly-printed sections from the whirling rotary press and stuff them in their proper sequence. These completed copies will be set aside until the final—the centennial—day when the regular day's edition will be published to form the cover section.

Extra Carriers

More than 125 trucks and automobiles will be used to whisk the completed newspaper to the various sections of the community so that a regular delivery schedule can be maintained. Extra carriers will be needed to lug the anniversary issue from door to door.

Extra copies of the centennial extra will be printed. It is necessary, however, for those desiring them to contact the circulation department within a short time. An announcement in regard to extra copies will be made shortly.

Special Wrapper

For those copies going to mail subscribers, a special colored Centennial wrapper has been designed. It is labeled: "A Century of Reading from Dixon, Ill." Contained on the wrapper, also, is a special centennial emblem seen for days now on the top of page one of the regular daily issue.

That is just a portion of the story behind the history-making centennial edition. Telegraph employees, who are accustomed to meeting deadlines, are eagerly working overtime to meet this important one more than a month away.

They are aware, now, that they are making publishing history.

Clothing Stuffed in Garbage Can New Clue in Twin-Murder

RIVERSIDE, CALIF.—(AP)—A man's clothing, found stuffed in a garbage can, is the newest clue in the slaying of a young Los Angeles couple in the desert near here Monday.

A pair of gray civilian trousers and a maroon shirt were discovered in a garbage can at nearby March air force base yesterday a few hours after the woman's body was found in a quarry two miles from the base.

Officers said Sgt. Lawrence J. Walker, Newark, N. J., negro, who is being questioned about the killings, refused to try on the trousers and shirt.

Investigators said the clothing appears to be bloodstained but that laboratory tests will be necessary to establish this definitely.

Deputy Newt Abbott quoted a Ferris, Calif., couple as telling him they saw a negro, wearing gray trousers and a maroon shirt, standing beside a stalled car near the fatal scene the day of the slayings.

The body of Doris Cook, 18, was discovered by a steel worker. Posses had searched the wasteland two days without success.

The woman's husband, Richard Cook, 18, was shot to death beside his car. A passing motorist found their infant son playing on a blanket near Cook's body.

Walker, 20, has admitted side-swiping Cook's car, the sheriff's office said, but denies any connection with the killings. He is held on suspicion of carrying a concealed weapon, a .45 caliber automatic. Officers said the bullet holes in the Cooks' bodies could have been made by .45 bullets.

Convict Three in Atom Spy Trial

Jury Weighs Evidence for Seven Hours

Linked With Fuchs In Relaying Atom Secrets to Russia

NEW YORK—(AP)—Two men and a woman were convicted today of passing wartime atomic secrets to Russia in the first atom spy trial in the United States.

The jury returned its verdict at 10 a. m. after seven hours and 18 minutes deliberation.

The convicted defendants, who could receive the death penalty, are Julius Rosenberg, 34-year-old electrical engineer; his diminutive, dark-haired wife, Ethel, 35, and radar expert Morton Sobell, 33.

The prosecutor did not ask for the death penalty, however, during summation.

The jury had weighed the fate of the three defendants for one hour and two minutes today after being locked up for the night at 11:40 p. m.

Relay Secrets

The trio was accused of relaying atom secrets to an international Red spy ring headed by Klaus Fuchs until his arrest in England early last year. The secrets, the government contended, included drawings of the atom bomb dropped on Nagasaki, Japan, in 1945.

The jury of 11 men and one woman filed back into the courtroom at 9:58 a. m. a minute before, Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman had mounted the bench.

Judge Kaufman congratulated the jurors and extended "deep gratitude" for their services.

Awaits Sentence

A fourth defendant, David Greenglass, brother of Ethel Rosenberg, confessed his part in the spy plot and testified against his relatives during the trial. Greenglass is awaiting sentence.

The espionage indictment named a fifth defendant, Anatoli A. Yakovlev, now believed to be in Russia.

Judge Kaufman set April 5 for imposition of sentences.

Rochelle Marine Wounded in Korea

A Rochelle Purple Heart veteran of World War II has been wounded in Korea, the Defense department announced Wednesday.

Sgt. William Stauffer was wounded March 21, according to word received by his wife, Mrs. Velma Stauffer, who lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Harris, 332 14th st., Rochelle.

Sgt. Stauffer, a tank leader with the First Marine division, was recalled to active duty Oct. 13. He left for Korea Dec. 16.

Stauffer received the Purple Heart for wounds on Saipan during World War II. After the war he was senior vice-commander of the Rochelle Veterans of Foreign Wars post. He was graduated from Rochelle high school.

King Again

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Pianist Nat (King) Cole has his mansion back.

The government seized it recently for nonpayment of $146,000 in back taxes. The internal revenue bureau yesterday said Cole had paid in cash the amount the government expected to get from the sale of the house. The amount was not disclosed.

Hail Kefauver Probe in Many Parts of Nation

Protestant Group Urges Action to Strengthen Morals

(By The Associated Press)

The crusade against crime, spearheaded by the Kefauver committee and other agencies, gained momentum today as a national Protestant group urged church action to strengthen the country's "moral fibre."

Hailing the official crack-down on organized crime, the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U. S. A. asked churches everywhere to help halt the "moral delinquency in our society."

The council's interim policy-making general board condemned "so-called 'innocent forms' of gambling" such as "legalized race track wagers, lotteries, bingo and the like."

The council represents 70 per cent of American Protestants. Swelling the national crime-busting campaign was an order by New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey calling for a grand jury investigation of gambling at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., a racetrack spa.

May Extend Life

In Washington, Republican members of the senate crime probe committee were working to extend the life of the committee, which ends this Saturday.

Sensors Wiley (R-Wis) and Tobey (R-NH) said they hope to get committee-extension approval from the senate.

Wiley, in urging a new lease on the committee's life, said the senate probe's work in Chicago is not finished and "the Chicago crime picture can be revealed far more than it has been so far."

Seek More Fixers

In New York City, the district attorney's office said detectives are scouring the eastern seaboard for at least four more fixers of the crime picture.

They Don't Know Who He Was, Or Where He Came From...

RICHMOND, VA.—(AP)—Virginia state police have the body of a little boy. They don't know who he was or where he came from, and won't say how he met his death.

This is all they know about the matter:

On the morning of March 5 a highway crew found the body a few feet off a secondary road that joins the Richmond-Charlottesville highway 26 miles west of Richmond.

The boy—about five or six years old—had been tucked into a blue army duffle bag with his reddish-blond haired head protruding. He was dressed in blue denim jeans, striped basque T-shirt, brown coat sweater with red and pink block checks. He wore red-white and blue striped socks but no shoes. He was of fair complexion, three feet, five inches tall and weighed 50 to 55 pounds.

The boy had been dead about a week.

Tests to determine how the boy died are still going on. The chief medical examiner's office has reported that asphyxiation or exposure are probabilities, but death from natural causes hasn't been ruled out.

Aussies, Canadians Roll Ahead As Chinese Reds Halt Americans

TOKYO—(AP)—Australian diggers and Canadian Princess Pats rolled up sizable gains today on the muddy central Korean front.

But elsewhere in the central and western sectors, the Communists fought their stiffest defensive action in weeks. They were dug in about four miles south of the Red Korean border in both areas.

The Red stand came as China rejected Gen. MacArthur's bid to talk peace with the Communist commander in Korea.

The British Commonwealth forces backed up their gains in rugged country northwest of Kapyong. Aussie and Canadian troops forced rushing streams and scrambled over hills soggy with three days of rain.

Kapyong is 12 miles south of the border and 12 miles southwest of Chunchon on the road to Seoul.

Heavy Mortar Fire

The Reds poured heavy mortar fire into Allied patrols striking up the Pukhan and Sohan river valleys between Chunchon and the border, eight miles away.

In the air, 16 F-86 sabre jets of the U. S. Fifth air force tangled Thursday with 23 Russian-style MIG-15 jets in three separate encounters over northwest Korea. No damage was reported to either side.

A Chinese broadcast heard in Tokyo called MacArthur's peace talk of last Saturday impertinent, insulting and "worth only a single laugh."

It said "the entire Chinese people will... fight unrelentingly until the aggressor is completely driven from Korea."

Fight Fiercely

The Chinese Thursday fought their stiffest action in weeks north of Munsan in the western front.

Firing from dug in positions about four miles south of the border, they all but stopped the Allied advance in the west.

MacArthur's Thursday communique said "the pattern of vehicular movement in enemy areas indicates a continued effort to support a strong concentration behind the central front." This could be the buildup for a spring drive or a border stand.

Rumor: "Big Deal"

But rumors to a "big deal" spread quickly along the front when it became known that Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, commander of the U. S. Eighth army, had conferred separately and secretly Wednesday with his corps commanders. And with U. S. Ambassador John J. Muccio.

Eight army sources said, however, that the meetings were not related and had no political significance.

Sight Missing Schooner With All-Girl Crew

Bureau Countian Skipper of Craft Flying Rebel Flag

MIAMI, FLA.—(AP)—The Coast Guard received a report today that a fishing boat had made contact with the missing schooner Tropicalair and its eight-girl crew and male skipper off Florida's west coast.

The Coast Guard announced the unconfirmed report at St. Petersburg. It was relayed by a fishing boat and said the missing schooner had been sighted yesterday 60 miles southwest of Venice, Fla.

The fishermen reported they gave the Tropicalair a course bearing on Venice. The schooner was proceeding under auxiliary power. Coast Guard officials said that under prevailing weather conditions it would take the Tropicalair "some time" to cover the 95 miles to its home port at St. Petersburg. Fly Rebel Flag

Defiantly flying a Confederate flag as "rebels," owner Lee Hederman, 47, and his all-girl crew left St. Petersburg Saturday noon on the 284-mile trip to Havana. They had been refused permission to compete in the St. Petersburg-Havana yacht race and went along "just for fun."

The two-masted schooner was ruled out of the race because the crew, the board of directors said, was not competent.

Skipper Hederman is a native of Cherry, Bureau county, Ill.

Station Wagon, Truck Collide

A station wagon collided with a truck at the east end of the railroad overpass on the Rock Island road just west of Dixon at about 10 a. m. today.

No injuries resulted although the right front fender of the station wagon was smashed and the headlight broken. Warren Stewart, 30, Sublette, told State Officer Cecil Byrd, Polo, he was turning left at the bottom of the grade when the station wagon collided with the truck.

Clayton Forsythe, 46, Rock Falls, was driver of the station wagon.

Burglars Net $50 at Ty Club

Burglars escaped with about $50 after breaking into the Ty club Tuesday night, Sheriff Charles H. Redebaugh said today.

The sheriff said the burglars broke a window on the south side of the building to gain entrance. They attempted to break open a juke box to get at the coin box but settled for the $50 in the cash register.

Time of the breakin was sometime after the club closed Tuesday night, Redebaugh said. Larry Smith reported the burglary.

Write-in Candidate Appears in Polo Highway Election

A write-in candidate has appeared on the scene in Polo in the Buffalo township highway commissioner race. Lynn Sweet announced his candidacy yesterday, but his name will not be on the ballot.

He will oppose Paul Wilson, present Polo street superintendent, and Grant Riggs, state highway maintenance department employee. The incumbent, Homer Sweet is not running.

Stanley Withdraws From Assistant Supervisor Race

A candidate for assistant supervisor in the Dixon township election has eliminated himself from the race.

Edward Stanley, stating circumstances beyond his control, has asked citizens not to vote for him in the township elections April 3. Stanley thanked his friends who had pledged their support.

Father of Nine, 'Good' Family Man, Pays Bill, Then Vanishes

CHICAGO—(AP)—Police disclosed today they have been searching for several weeks for a 41-year-old father of nine children who disappeared March 3.

He is William E. Gavin, a steamfitter, who has been married 20 years and never before was separated from his family.

Detectives John Meehan and James Hanrahan said he dropped out of sight Saturday, March 3, when he left home at 11 a. m. with $45 to buy some coal and some heating equipment.

He stopped at the O'Keefe Coal Co. and paid $40 of his $45 for two tons of coal which he ordered. He hasn't been seen since.

His wife, Mary, said Gavin told her he was going to visit some used plumbing supply shops on West Lake street. She said he wanted to buy some radiators and pipes for a hot water heating system he had started to install in their two-flat building.

Meehan said no one in the plumbing shops reported having seen Gavin.

"Gavin was a hard worker and a good family man," Meehan said. "There's a paycheck for $102.10 for him at Stone & Webster (his employers). A man who's got to take a runout doesn't first pay two tons of coal, and then leave his pay back behind."

Meehan said he treated four of Gavin's nine children range in age from five to 17 years.

Budget Suits Hard to Resist

By GAILE DUGAS
NEW YORK—(NEA)—The budget suit, trimly tailored and priced under $20, is clothes bait to many women these days. It becomes even more tempting when it's made of worsted-and-sheen gabardine, or nylon-and-acetate cord that washes with spectacular success. These fabrics are hard to find in budget suits. And detailing in many budget suits equals that found in far more expensive designs. The suit that's a perfect travel companion (right) is washable, is in gray and white stripe nylon and acetate cord, is a Lampl design. This is a suit classic, buttoning from stand-up collar to the waist with pearl buttons. The shoulders have a hint of epaulet, the skirt is straight and slim. Another good travel companion, this time in pink worsted and sheen gabardine, is a suit (left) with a tricky button-down collar. This motif is repeated in hip pocket tabs. Good, classic lines make this slim suit easy to wear.

Police Check Four Breakins At Sterling

STERLING — Four east side firms reported burglaries to police here Wednesday.

Stores broken into include the Polar Palace confectionery, 1203 E. Fourth st.; Chip and Curl beauty shop, adjoining the confectionery; Superior cleaners, 1909 E. Fourth st., and the George Warner warehouse, 1605 E. Third st.

An attempt to burglarize the Palms tavern, 1209 E. Fourth st., was unsuccessful, police said. Officers found a hand drill near the rear door of the building. All breakins occurred sometime Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. The four firms were entered after the burglars broke windows.

Stolen from the Polar Palace was $31 from the cash register. The burglars also ripped open a cigarette machine and a juke box, taking an unknown amount of money.

The burglars got only $4 at the beauty parlor but took a suit, two pair of trousers and two shirts from the cleaning shop.

Stolen from the warehouse were 10 boxes of candy.

Round the World On Motorcycles

LONDON, (AP)—A preparatory school teacher near here who believes that "school mastering is bad for the brain," has set out on a round-the-world motorcycle tour.

John L. Cook, the teacher, took along T. H. Hamilton Fletcher, a farmer, who answered his advertisement for a traveling companion with another motorcycle. The tour is supposed to cover 33,000 miles in 14 months. The two men expect to visit in Europe, India, Australia, Africa, the United States, Mexico and Buenos Aires.

When Gen. Ulysses S. Grant went to West Point, he disliked the idea intensely.

Food Prices Mostly Steady But Fish, Chickens, Eggs Best Buys

(By the Associated Press)

A long list of fresh vegetables cost a little less in many stores this week, but otherwise food prices held about steady.

Food trade spokesmen said it would be at least a couple of weeks before shoppers would notice much change in the prices of foods affected by the new "mark-up" controls.

Other price-makers for large supermarket chains agreed this would likely be the general practice. Several said they expect the number of price boosts to exceed the rollbacks because "most of our food replacement costs have gone up since our own selling prices went under ceilings."

Cover Most Foods

The new controls cover most packaged and canned foods, but not fresh meat, fruits or vegetables, milk, eggs or bread. They fix the amount of the "mark-up" which grocers are allowed to charge over what they have to pay for the foods. Previously, most food ceilings were established at the highest level charged by a particular seller between Dec. 18 and Jan. 23 although rises were usually allowed to reflect higher farm prices.

Market sources described consumer buying of fresh fruits and vegetables as very slow this week.

in major areas. Meat buying also dragged, they said.

Lower Foods

Lower this week were beans, broccoli, asparagus, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, green corn, eggplant, endives, escarole, peppers, spinach and squash. Apples also declined. Beets were scarce and a little higher, and lettuce moved up slightly as quality improved.

Top grade egg prices were marked down two to four cents a dozen in scattered sections.

Here is the agriculture department's national list of most-plentiful foods for thrifty buying in April: Apples, canned applesauce, dry beans, potatoes, broiling and frying chickens, eggs, frozen fish, cottage cheese, peanut butter and honey.

Normal Reaction

LOS ANGELES, (AP) — Are you nervous when appearing before an audience? Do your knees shiver and shake? Then you are perfectly normal, says Dr. Waldo Phelps, instructor in speech at the University of California.

"Tenseness is natural even in people with years of public speaking experience," he states. The instructor outlined three rules a speaker should follow to control the trembling and shaking. They are: 1. Use gestures to release your energy, 2. Prepare carefully; and 3. Have something to say which you want to share with your audience.

How Russians Treat Farmers Told in North Korean Survey

By SIGRID ARNE
WASHINGTON, (AP) — Out of Korea has come the first official report of how Communists treat farmers. It is written by Robert A. Kinney, an officer for the economic cooperation administration who followed United Nations troops into North Korea last summer.

He talked to North Korean farmers who had lived under both the Japanese occupation and the Communist government which started in 1945.

He also talked to South Korean farmers who lived under the American occupation and then under the government of the Republic of South Korea.

Get Full Report
Washington has had reports on how the Soviets treat their own farmers and farmers in the middle European satellite nations. But those reports were always sneaked out by refugees. Never before has a U. S. government official had the chance to walk into former Communist territory and actually talk to the men who had tried to till the land under the Red flag.

Kinney found that the Reds made a hurried gesture in 1945 to curry political favor with the North Koreans. They redistributed the land—took it from absentee landlords and gave it to tenants—in 25 days.

Gave "Use" Rights
That lasted until 1948, when the Reds suddenly redistributed the land again, giving all the best to Communist party favorites. It seemed the Communists had only given farmers "use rights" rather than title to the land. When they wanted to throw a farmer off his land they simply took away his "use rights."

Kinney says the farmers realized that the system made them "merely tenants of the state and reduced them to the status of slaves."

In 1947 the Communists decreed a "production tax in kind."

Farmers were forced to turn in 27 per cent of their rice and 23 per cent of their other crops. The farmers thought this was high enough, but they found in some cases they actually had to pay the new Red government as much as 50 per cent of what they produced.

How It Worked
The percentage tax was not levied on what they actually produced but on what their Red masters thought they ought to produce.

The North Korean farmers were astounded to learn of the land reform program which had been put into effect in South Korea under the American occupation and the Republic of South Korea.

In South Korea farmers were given the chance to get title to their land in five years in return for a third of their major crop for five years.

Under that program 60 per cent of the South Korean farmers had gained free title to their land, Kinney reports, and 40 per cent were on the road when the Communist invasion disrupted the program.

Rockford Asks Bus Changes

CHICAGO, (AP) — Hearings on the city of Rockford's complaint of inadequate bus service have been continued to April 12 by the Illinois commerce commission.

Rockford filed its complaint against the Central Illinois Electric and Gas Co. Dec. 27, 1950. The utilities firm operates the bus line.

City Attorney LaVerne Anderson presented a petition to the commission Tuesday signed by 4,000 Rockford residents asking for restoration of former bus routes.

Job Outlook Bright for 1951 Grads

CHICAGO, (AP)—The job outlook is bright for this year's high school and college graduates, an employment expert said today.

Seymour L. Wolfbein, chief of the occupational outlook service for the Bureau of Labor statistics, said job seekers will find the situation favorable as long as mobilization continues.

Addressing the National Association of Guidance Supervisors, Wolfbein said that while the defense program has "radically changed the general employment outlook," present and future employment prospects vary from one occupation to another.

Expect 1,250,000 Will Vote Tuesday For Chicago Mayor

CHICAGO, (AP) — Election board officials predicted yesterday that Chicagoans will cast at least 1,250,000 votes in the mayoral election Tuesday.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarocki, ex officio head of the board, figured the total will be 1,250,000. John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board, estimated 1,375,000 ballots will be cast.

Both would be under the totals in the two most recent mayoral elections—1,588,077 in 1947 and 1,274,119 in 1943.

They said they took into calculation the fact that there will be only five runoff elections for alderman Tuesday compared with 19 four years ago.

Mayor Martin H. Kennelly, Democrat running for reelection, is pitted against Robert L. Hunter.

Voters also will decide contests for city clerk, city treasurer and municipal court judge.

Mysterious Spud

VANCOUVER, (AP)—Indians in the British Columbia interior harvest a wild potato small and slender, and sometimes called lady fingers. The flesh is yellow and the flavor resembles the sweet potato.

W. A. Faulkner of Lytton says that apparently centuries ago natives of Chile and Peru journeyed northward in their canoes to what is now British Columbia. They brought their native foods and vegetables and introduced them to Indian tribes.

However, Dr. V. C. Brink of the University of British Columbia says he believes the potatoes were introduced about 1850-60 by Scandinavian trappers and miners.

New Bill Would Crack Down On Gambling in Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, (AP)—The Illinois legislature has been asked to enact broader curbs on gambling. A bill filed in the senate yesterday by Senator Kent Lewis (D-Robinson) provides penalties against any person who permits gambling devices on premises he owns, leases or occupies.

It prohibits manufacture, transport, ownership, use or sale of a slot machine, punchboard, pull board, trade board, lucky jar, or any other device on which valuables are staked or hazarded.

Lewis proposed penalties ranging from a $250 fine for a first offense to a $500 fine and two to four years imprisonment for a third offense.

Senator James W. Gray (D-East St. Louis) submitted a bill to outlaw manufacture, assembly, sale or lease of gambling devices in any county of the state, instead of only those where military posts are located.

Other measures offered included those to:

Make it the policy of the state to provide opportunities for blind persons to operate vending stands on public property.

Appropriate $730,640 to the state treasurer for operation of his office in the next two years starting July 1.

Require annual reports listing names of persons employed 10 days or more by any horse race track, and names of persons owning any interest in a horse track.

BURBANK, Calif., (AP)—Firemen blamed a bottle for the fire that burned Mrs. Mildred K. Rich's garage. The sun's rays passing through the bottom of the bottle—which acted like a burning glass—ignited some paper.

Racket Money in Legitimate Business Weakens Moral Code

Americans are accustomed to tucking their criminal elements into nice, neat compartments, serene in the elements that however bad they might be they don't contaminate the rest of life.

That serenity ought to be disturbed, however, by facts now accumulating as result of the Kefauver crime inquiry and other investigations.

The evidence is unmistakable that many underworld leaders in many parts of the United States have heavily invaded legitimate business.

Frank Costello, alleged by senate investigators to be underworld king, gave the Kefauver committee some notion of his legitimate investments. He put $40,000 into a television concern, $41,000 into an oil company, thousands into real estate properties in New York and elsewhere, and still other funds into a firm making an item supposed to cook a chicken by "infra-red rays."

Other testimony suggests that mobsters have been pouring millions into hotels, liquor firms, automobile and steel-making companies, food and beverage manufacture, trucking, laundries, dressmaking.

A steel official in Detroit told the Kefauver committee a gangster helped out his firm with a $100,000 investment at a time when the company needed funds to acquire properties of another concern.

Anthony D'Anna, alleged by the committee to be Detroit head of Mafia, the Italian terrorist ring, is described as holding a half interest in the motor carrier which hauls all Ford cars from Ford plants in the area. He's also listed as director of a bank.

But why multiply the illustrations? They are more than ample to shock us into realizing that in many parts of the U. S. economy the line between legitimacy and illegitimacy is almost rubbed out.

The mobsters' purpose is clear. First, it gives a cloak of honesty to all their nefarious underworld enterprises. When questioned, they present their legitimate front, protesting heatedly that they are honest businessmen.

Secondly, it provides a lucrative investment outlet for the millions they make in gambling, vice racketeering and such.

All this makes them richer and muddies the waters so thoroughly that it is hard for the law ever to nail them.

Ruth Millett
Sometimes Better to Love Than Understand Hubby

"I don't try to understand Bill. I just love him," I recently heard a woman say. Her Bill is a happy husband, so maybe there is some wisdom in her recipe for getting along with a man.

After all, that's about the way Grandma regarded Grandpa, isn't it?

Most of her sayings would seem to indicate that it was.

She said: "Feed the brute." There wasn't anything about trying to understand him.

She said: "Well, if that isn't just like a man" when Grandpa did something to irritate her, instead of cooking up some theory as to what made him act the way he did.

She said: "You can't teach an old dog new tricks." And that applied to Grandpa, when her efforts to change any of his ideas fell on barren ground.

Maybe They Work at It Too

Much

Maybe women today are trying too hard to understand their husbands when they would get along better just loving them and not worrying too much about "understanding."

When you get right down to it, a woman can't ever really understand a man, any more than a man can understand a woman.

Each sort of has to take the other on faith. Where there is love there doesn't have to be perfect understanding.

Many of today's husbands would probably be happier if their wives were more concerned with loving them than with understanding them.

And the woman who can shrug off one man's failings with the philosophical "If that isn't just like a man" is sure to be a happier wife than the woman who digs around into a man's mental processes in the belief that if she can just find out what makes him act as he does maybe she can make him act the way she would like him to.

HOLLYWOOD, (NEA)—I just latched onto the story of Errol Flynn, Patrice Wymore, the yacht Zaca and the peeping American sailors—it's a pip. Don't be surprised if it turns up in a Claudette Colbert-Fred MacMurray movie.

It happened when Errol and Patrice sailed off in the Zaca for their honeymoon.

"We were way out at sea. That night a terrific storm broke," Errol's dream girl confided. "The storm raged and the dinner plates wouldn't stay on the table. So we turned the Zaca toward a little fishing harbor down the French coast."

"Next morning there was this awful racket. We ran up to the deck. The American fleet had dropped anchor during the night and here's the Zaca sandwiched between two big battleships."

Patrice started to blush.

"The sailors were all yelling across the water, 'Yo, ho, Errol!' At that Errol raised his eyebrows and said to me: 'Isn't it lucky that we picked this quiet, secluded spot for our honeymoon?' I told him I didn't think it was so bad. After all, the ships were some distance away. Then Errol handed me his binoculars and suggested that I take a look.

"Thousands of sailors were all lined up on the ships and they were all looking at Errol and me through binoculars!"

Nancy Carroll, one-time dimpled ingenue of the early talkies, is planning a film comeback. She scored a personal triumph in "Goodbye My Fancy" at Phoenix's Sombbrero Playhouse . . . MGM is excited about Maria Palmer since her role of the Hungarian countess who shares Elio Pinza's love with Janet Leigh in "Strictly Dishonorable" . . . Janet Blair's new heartbeat is Nick Mayo, stage manager of the Chicago company of "South Pacific."

RING THEATER

Not in the script: Hal Peary, commenting on Max Baer's plans to become a wrestler: "He'll probably be a great success. I hear he hired two wrestling instructors and four dramatic coaches."

UI is working out a one-film-a-year deal with Macondald Carey, who's back on the lot to star in "The Cave." Most of the film will be made inside the Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico . . . Dinah Shore finally gets the chance to sing her all—and it's about time—on the screen in "Aaron Slick From Pumpkin Creek." She'll warble three solos, plus duets with Robert Merrill and Alan Young.

Since the Music Corporation of America signed feline actor Orangety Murray, the star of Paramount's "Rhubarb," to a client contract, other agents are scrambling to sign up animal stars.

Imaginary conversation among the kennel and stable set:

Lassie: "I told my agent to get on the ball or else . . ."

Flame: "Charlie Feldman's wooing me. If Ginger Rogers goes over to him, I might consider it."

Francis: "Imagine the nerve of my agent. He keeps telling me I should be satisfied with mule roles. It's money in the bank," he says, "and did you ever hear of Lassie changing type? Well, I told him off. I'm holding out for thoroughbred horse roles and if he doesn't find me one, brother, I'm switching."

Jackie, the lion: "My agent used to give me good service. Now he's handing Hedy Lamarr and it's gone to his head. Doesn't he know that human beings don't pay off like animal stars? Do I complain? Look, I growl about it all the time."

CO-ED CAPERS

Louis Armstrong has found a new gold mine—jazz concerts at college auditoriums . . . Ralph Peer, who publishes all the "Mammy" tunes, reports London music stores can't keep the sheet music in stock since news cameras caught Princess Margaret Mambo-dancing.

Lloyd Bridges is headed for a Broadway musical comedy debut as Olga San Juan's co-star in "Paint Your Wagon." . . . Anthony Quinn has purchased the H. G. Wells short story, "Country of the Blind," and will direct a movie version this fall with himself as the star.

When the cast and crew of "The River" checked into their hotel in Calcutta to start shooting the movie, not more than five minutes had elapsed before producer Ken McDowd's wife, Melvina, rushed to the lobby and waited to Ken:

"There are three lizards in our bedroom."

Arthur Shields, standing nearby, came back with:

"What did you expect for 90 rupees ($19.80) a day? Gary Cooper as a Bengal Lancer chasing a herd of elephants?"

Jim Williams' Cowboys Rounded Up in New Book

THE GUEST

J. R. WILLIAMS: He'd rather be a successful cowman.

NEW YORK, (NEA)—A panorama of the color and humor of the American West, as portrayed by one of the world's best-known and best-loved cartoonists—J. R. Williams—is on display in the just-published book, "Cowboys Out Our Way" (Charles Scribner's Sons, $2).

Readers who have enjoyed Williams' "Out Our Way" cartoons on the comic page of The Evening Telegraph will find many of their favorites reproduced in this new collection.

The book includes 192 of the cowboy drawings which have entertained millions of newspaper readers during the last 28 years. Jim Williams started drawing "Out Our Way" in 1922. His work now appears in more than 1000 daily and Sunday newspapers.

All of the famous Williams cowpuncher characters appear in this collection: Curly and Stuffy; Wes, the reformed tenderfoot; Big Ike; Sugar, the unpredictable cook; Soda, the pipe-smoking cowhand, and others. Nearly every page features the amazing, lifelike horse and cattle, drawn as only Jim Williams can draw them.

Says J. Frank Dobie, celebrated western authority and writer, and university professor, in the book's foreword: "The characters come out of two deeply seated realities in their creator: his own experience on the range and his dreams of a free life in the open. Over years of time Jim Williams has been living with these characters on their own spaces of mesa, mountain and canyon, with here and there a hole of alkalish water."

Dobie tells of the artist's background as a cowboy in the New Mexico and Arizona country. "He has cooked for cow outfits and put up with camp cooks in his own day. He has owned and operated a 45,000-acre ranch, doing his own part of the work. He was a cavalryman for three years in the days when cavalry meant horses."

Yet, says Dobie, "Jim Williams is a very diffident and humble man. He depreciates his own work with a modesty painful both to himself and his friends."

"Also, in his own words, he would rather have been a fairly successful cowman out in the bright sunlight of the days than the most successful cartoonist that ever lived." If giving his own shirt to any cowpuncher who came along would make a cowman successful, I imagine Jim Williams might have become the king of cattle kings."

Williams has a library well stocked with western books, but he also reads the best of literature, including poetry. Dobie reveals. "He likes to remember people and things that have appealed to him. That is one of the marks of a generous nature. I imagine that his continuing cartoons on 'The Worry Wart' and 'Why Mothers Get Gray' often trail back to the long, long thoughts, as well as to the devilments of his own boyhood."

"The cartoons on the machine shop, dominated by 'The Bull of the Woods' go back to his work as a machinist. 'Born Thirty Years Too Soon' has carried millions of people back to times before the horseless carriage machine the world. He may spend a day searching for an idea that he can put in black and white in a fraction of an hour. To vast numbers of people he is a part of their daily bread."

"Cowboys Out Our Way" is the sixth book of "Out Our Way" cartoons to be published by Scribner's.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Q—Who invented painting in oils?

A—The Van Eyck brothers of the Flemish School, have been generally credited with the invention, or at least the first practice, of painting in oil.

Q—What is meant by the Great Laws in history?

A—The Magna Carta, the charter of English liberty, is often called the Great Law.

Q—Where did the nickname Brother Jonathan, as applied to Americans, originate?

A—According to Connecticut

What's RIGHT?

You invite an unexpected guest to stay for dinner with the family and he accepts the invitation.

WRONG: Keep apologizing for the meal, saying that if you had known you were to have company you would have planned something special.

RIGHT: Give him what you have without apology. That is true hospitality.

tradition, the national nickname Brother Jonathan is derived from the fact that George Washington used this sobriquet in speaking of Governor Jonathan Trumbull of that state, who was one of his most trusted advisors.

Westbrook Pegler
Warns That While Kefauver and Fulbright Committees Have Done Good, Work, They Have Violated Rights of Some Citizens

(Copyright, 1951, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The Kefauver and Fulbright committees have done good work and the public is the better off for their efforts. Be it known nevertheless that some congressional investigations are inquiries in the most evil sense of that word. Even these two "good" investigations appear to have violated some rights of citizens and the fact that these individuals are "bad" citizens puts it up to us to resist the temptation to give them the works.

Otherwise, the time may come when "good" citizens will get the works. Indeed, good citizens have been given the works by bad committees and that abuse is the subject of these commentaries on the misconduct of congressional inquiries.

Whole truckloads of private documents are seized without the slightest warrant under law. Citizens permit committees and their agents to get away with such raids because they do not know their rights. They are overawed by the credentials of private detectives employed as investigators.

Richard Rollins, of Boston, now a chewing gum salesman, a liar and thief by his own written boast, acquired official credentials from the old Dickstein committee and, for a time, was chief of a nasty private gestapo run by one James H. Sheldon. Who, in turn, is a stooge for Isidore Lipschutz, the boss of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi league and the Society for the Prevention of World War III.

During World War II Rollins naturally drifted into the OPA where he had for a colleague an old jailbird named Joe Brandt who has a pardon from ex-Governor Lehman of New York. Brandt also had a background of such gestapo activity. The powers which such men enjoy when they hold credentials from the OPA or its present successor, which also is packed with questionable characters, are a menace to all decent citizens, especially those who oppose the Communist treason.

Brandt was loath to give up his OPA credentials when he was "separated" from that service, and his superior in the OPA had to appeal to Frank Hogan, the district attorney of New York, to make him surrender them. These papers roughly resembled those carried by agents of the FBI.

Last summer the Buchanan committee of the house ran a fake investigation of "lobbying" for the hidden purpose of seizing the papers of patriotic organizations and revealing their contents to other societies which opposed their work, including the Anti-Nazi league. The committee pointedly ignored the Anti-Nazi league and many others like it and wound up its disgraceful farce with a "report" of 565 pages, including 365 pages of private correspondence of the National Economic Council which frankly advocates constitutional government and patriotism.

Mervin K. Hart, of New York, the president of the council, regards himself as a man with a mission. The familiar Communist cries of "hate-monger" and "Fascist" have been raised against him, but the fact stands out that he is a law-abiding citizen whose private papers were unlawfully seized.

Harry S. Barger, a Washington lawyer, charged that much of the correspondence was fished from the files of the council by a Hart's employ. Mr. Hart evaded a statement as to this, apparently wary of a trap to get him to make charges which he might be unable to prove.

Barger wrote Frank Buchanan, the chairman of the committee, a weakly with a record of three indictments charging petty swindles, all dismissed on his payment of the costs, pointing out that none of the correspondence published in this official document bore any relation to the subject under inquiry—lobbying. He said the committee's purpose was to "furnish a large army of smear artists and columnists with material to attack anyone who dares to speak for the United States and for a sound, constitutional government."

Congressman Clyde Doyle, of California, had the effrontery to say the committee had a right to seize any private correspondence impugning the committee's motives even in confidence between individuals, because that charge "involves the whole American people."

Doyle hasn't opened his mouth, however, since I began to reveal the background of his chairman and to touch up the committee's dogged restraint in ignoring anti-Communist organizations. Here is a flagrant case which may nevertheless serve a decent purpose, in warning the honest citizen that he must look out for himself and expect the worst in dealing with congressional committees.

Play for All in Tournament

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Our discussion of Canasta tournaments earlier this week reminds me that several readers have asked, from time to time, what style of play is best for a tournament player to adopt. The general answer is: Play for all or nothing.

In most tournaments there's no glory in coming in second or third. You might just as well wind up at the bottom of the heap if you can't take the first prize. Therefore, there is no point at all in playing safe.

In a large tournament, some pair is bound to have a lucky streak. If there are five or six rounds, some pair is going to average about 2000 points per round. It won't do you much good to beat your opponents by a few hundred points.

For the purpose of winning the tournament, that small victory is just the same as getting beaten. At best, you can stand on such round if you have very big scores on all the other rounds; but you cannot hope to be a contender for first prize if you have two small victories.

The surest way to run up a big score is to fight desperately for the discard pile. If you get the pile, you will get the score; if you lose the pile, the opponents will get the big score. It's a free-swinging type of game that is not suited to everybody's temperament, but it's the only possible winning style.

Therefore, discard dangerously or trickily on hands that have possibilities. With a poor hand, discard ultra-safely in the hope that your partner can save the day. Freeze the pile, discard your deuces into it. Do anything—but don't sit tight.

That, at any rate, must be your style during the early rounds of the tournament. Toward the end of the evening, you may change.

For example, suppose you have had five very big scores and that you are now playing the final round. You might be able to stand a small loss and still win the tournament. Don't risk a really big loss in this situation.

To take another case, suppose you have had three really bad

The MATURE PARENT

ASKING NEIGHBOR'S ADVICE WASTES EVERYBODY'S TIME

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

When we seek the answers to our children's misbehavior problems from our neighbors, relatives and friends, we're wasting their time and ours.

The problems of Mary's bedtime tantrums, Jimmy's defiant manner and shy little Fred's chronic lying have answers. They are waiting to be found, not in other people's advice, but in us—in our secret fears that we are incompetent and unworthy of love and respect.

Mary's mother, shaken and distressed after her little daughter's nightly bedtime scene, might begin solving the problem by first giving herself time to recover some calm.

Then she might start to think like this: "That was a tantrum. Why does it frighten me so? Why should kicks and screams disturb me? Perhaps they are not what disturb me. When I tell Mary to go to bed, I am taking authority. I am making a decision. Could it be that making decisions upsets me? Why should making decisions frighten me? Don't I trust myself to make good ones?"

When Mary's mother has reached this point in her self-investigation, she might put down her darning and ask herself the really big question: "Who or what has made me feel incompetent to make good decisions for my child?"

DOING YOUR OWN HOMEWORK

Jimmy's mother might take a little holiday from reproaching Jim for his impudence and think over thoughts like these: "This is impudence I am receiving. Why does my child give it to me? Is there something about me that suggests that I am willing to accept indignity? Maybe. What could it be? Who or what has made me believe that I am not entitled to courtesy and consideration?"

That last one is her biggest question.

There is the answer for Fred's mother too, if she really wants to find it. She might say to herself: "So it's another he. He did break my dish. He tells me he didn't break it because the truth would show him up as careless. What have I done that has made my little boy feel that he cannot confide a carelessness to me? Am I ever careless, weak and frightened? Of course I am. Then why do I pretend that I am above carelessness, weakness and fear? Am I trying to prove I'm different from the rest of the human race? Who and what has made me feel I have to prove such a thing?"

When we begin to figure the answers to questions like these, we'll be too busy to ask other people to do our homework for us. If we keep on trying to find those answers, we'll get them for ourselves like mature parents.

Presbyterian Group to Hear Arthur Ellerd

Arthur Ellerd will be the speaker at the spring meeting this evening of the Presbyterian Women's Association, at the church at 8.

Ellerd is in the psychological services department of the Dixon State hospital. He is a graduate of the University of Iowa and the University of Nebraska and has done graduate work at the University of Chicago. Ellerd will speak on "The Hospital Program and Its Public Relations." The women of the church are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Hostesses for the evening are: Mrs. M. F. MacDonald, chairman, Mrs. Albert Vandenberg, Mrs. Theodore O. Moore, Mrs. G. W. Lindquist, Mrs. Robert Preston and Mrs. H. D. McCreary.

Dixon WCTU

Frances Willard Union of the Dixon WCTU will meet at the home of Miss Flora Seals, 810 Ottawa av., for a dessert luncheon at 1:30 p.m., Friday, April 6. The regular meeting will be held at 2 p.m. Mrs. Frank Forman Sr. will be the assisting hostess.

Mrs. George Baker Jr., will give the lesson study and Mrs. Emma Hill will give highlights of the Union Signal. Books for the Veterans administration hospital library, Quincy, are to be brought to this meeting.

Residing in Franklin Grove are newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. James D. McMillon. Mrs. McMillon is the former Marjorie Baker.

Wed 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thomas, 700 Broadway, Sterling, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary, March 28. They will hold an open house for their friends Sunday, April 1, from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m. in celebration of their anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas are the parents of Crawford A. Thomas, Dixon.

Plum Hollow Ladies Will View Styles

When the Plum Hollow Ladies organization holds its Tuesday, April 3, card party at the Plum Hollow golf and country club, Mrs. Forrest Shawger, Mrs. Frank Hoyle, Mrs. Richard Hammarstrom and Mrs. Robert Hammarstrom will be the hostesses.

There will be a dessert luncheon at 1 p.m. and all members and friends have a special invitation to attend a style show to be presented by a local dress shop.

Reservations may be made with any members of the committee by Tuesday.

Amvet Auxiliary Plans Card Party To Be April 26

When the March social meeting of the Amvets auxiliary was held at the Amvet hall, President Hannan conducted a brief business meeting prior to the social meeting. A report was given on the District 2 dinner served by the auxiliary. The next district meeting will be May 20, in Dixon.

Mrs. George Imfeld was appointed District 2 Child Welfare chairman to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Gladys Klierer, Freeport.

It was decided to hold a public card party, April 26, at the Amvet hall, beginning at 8 o'clock. Various card games will be played with both men and women invited. Mrs. Lyle Ballard and Mrs. Carroll Yeast were appointed chairmen of the party for which there will be prizes and refreshments.

Following the business meeting, games of what's my name were played, as was buncos, with prizes going to Mrs. Everett Hannan and Mrs. Delbert Pittman.

At the close of the social hour the hostesses, Mrs. Clarence Wilson and Mrs. Wesley Killmer, served refreshments. The next meeting of the auxiliary will be April 3, at 8 p.m., at the Amvet hall.

Friday Brunch

The Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild of which Mrs. Charles Walgreen is vice president, will have their annual luncheon, their 24th this year as a "Brunch," at 11:30 a.m. Friday, March 30, at the Lake Shore club.

Marjorie Baker in Satin for Wedding To Mr. McMillion

Amid a setting of candelabra and baskets of white gladioli and snapdragons, Marjorie Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker, Franklin Grove, became the bride of James D. McMillon, son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. McMillon, Franklin Grove. The double ring ceremony was performed Sunday evening, Feb. 18, at St. John's Lutheran church, Ashton, by Rev. O. Kalkwarf.

Miss Merle Aschenbrenner played a recital of organ music before the ceremony and accompanied Miss Shirley Kersten, Ashton, as she sang "Because" and Howard Christian, Yorkville, as he sang "The Lord's Prayer," while the bride and groom knelt at the altar. Miss Doris Mae Klingebiel of Ashton, softly played the vibra-harp, while the vows were being spoken.

Gown of Satin

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of sculptured white satin, fashioned with an Elizabethan collar of chantilly lace, over satin, long tight sleeves, fitted basque bodice with tiny covered buttons to the waist, and a full, graceful skirt with a lace edged peplum, which fell into soft folds and swept into a formal train. Her finger tip veil of nylon illusion import was held in place by a tiara of seed pearls and rhinestones. She wore a pearl and rhinestone necklace, a gift from the bridegroom and carried pink roses on a white Bible, from which fell white hyacinths and satin streamers.

Miss Carolyn Herbst, maid of honor, wore a dress fashioned of pink imported rayon net over taffeta, a large pink lace hat and matching pink shoes. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink bountiful roses and white carnations.

Miss Ellen Voss, bridesmaid, wore an identical gown of powder blue with matching blue hat and shoes and carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and white carnations.

Miss Gayle Johnson, Yorkville, cousin of the bride, as flower girl, wore a yellow nunon gown over taffeta and carried a basket of yellow rose petals.

Mac McMillon was his brother's best man and Charles Baker, Jr., Chicago, brother of the bride, was groomsmen. Dean McMillon and Larry McMillon, brothers of the groom, and Donald Baker, Inglewood, Calif., brother of the bride, ushered.

The bride's mother wore a plum colored crepe dress with a white carnation corsage. The groom's mother wore a grey crepe dress with a pink carnation corsage. Church Reception

A reception was held in the church parlors immediately following the ceremony. A four tiered wedding cake centered the table, which was decorated in the bride's colors, blue and white. Mrs. Steve Fleming, Dixon, sister of the bridegroom, cut the cake. The meal was prepared by the Sunday school teachers and served by Elaine Gehant, Shirley Vernier, Donna Moss, Mary Louise Biessecker, Bertie Lou Pfoutz, and Beverly Watson, friends and classmates of the bride. Corrine Floto and Joyce Miller were in charge of the gifts and Lou Ann Emmons was in charge of the guest book.

When the couple left for a short trip, the bride was wearing a beige suit with orchid and brown accessories. She wore her pink rose corsage.

A graduate of Franklin Grove high school with the class of 1950, the bride is employed as a bookkeeper at Hussey's Lumber company. The groom attended Dixon high school and completed his education in the Navy as a radarman for three years. He is now employed at the Reynolds Wire company, Dixon.

Out of town guests were from Dixon, Ashton, Yorkville, Chicago and Inglewood, Calif.

Catholic Women Have Dinner and Meeting at Hall

Sixty-five members of the Catholic Women's club met at St. Mary's hall Tuesday evening for a 6:30 scramble supper. Mrs. William Rink, president, conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Melvin Murphy and Mrs. Clarence Pieschel were in charge of the supper and were assisted by the third grade room mothers.

Mrs. Theresa McMahon, Lee County Health nurse, gave a talk on "Growth and Learning," and showed films on the topic of child psychology.

IN A SCENE from the Community Players production, "Tish," which will be staged at 8 p. m. Thursday and Friday at the Loveland Community house, Velma Ryan, left, portraying Charita, the Mexican maid, scares Hazel Hecker, as Aggie, who is trying to climb over the sofa, and Nan Richards as Tish. Mickey Jewett, right, as Ella is trying to explain that the girl is harmless.

Community Players to Open "Tish" Tonight at Loveland

First nighters attending "Tish" tonight at the Loveland Community Building will find many familiar faces on stage. In addition to Nan Richards, who will play Tish, Hazel Hecker and Mary Campbell as Aggie and Lizzie, Mickey Jewett as Ellen, and Joe Kastner as Charlie, the following have been given parts in the play.

Velma Ryan has been cast as Charita, a Mexican girl with an "Ugh" vocabulary and dead-pan expressions. Dwayne Stephens will play Sheriff Lem Pike, who does his best to help Tish out of her troubles. Both Velma and Dwayne were awarded the Community Players' Oscar for their characterizations of Ma Brannigan and Cy Souder in "The Campbells Are Coming," the Dixon Community Players last comedy.

Louise Ramsdale will play Bettina, a visitor to the Eagle Hotel, who brings with her an aura of mystery, and Roger Zink will be recognized as Wesley Andrews, partner in a conspiracy with Bettina, thereby introducing a sinister aspect to the play.

Jerry Emmert has been cast as Denby Grimes, a Hollywood Director, and Sue Parker is Dorice Gaylord, a Hollywood actress.

Bob McNabb will play Luther Hopkins, a hard-hearted man with an irate temper—a dominating figure in the story. Nadine Wolf has been cast as Callie Hopkins, his teen age daughter.

Curtain time is 8 o'clock. However, tickets will be sold at the door tonight from 7 to 8:15 p. m. to take care of any latecomers. The play will also be presented Friday evening.

Mrs. Bauer Is Honored

A group of friends and neighbors surprised Mrs. Margaret Bauer recently on her birthday with a party. Canasta was played with prizes going to Mrs. Gertrude Malloy, first; Mrs. Mabel Potts, second; and Mrs. Bauer, low.

Late in the evening refreshments were served which the visitors furnished including a birthday cake baked by Mrs. Ella Bolken.

The honoree received many gifts from the following guests: Mrs. Ella Bolken, Mrs. Mabel Potts, Mrs. James Julian, Mrs. Gertrude Malloy, Mrs. George Glasier, Miss Margaret O'Donnell and Mrs. Hazel Drew.

Mrs. Dale Miller Named to Office At County Meeting

Frank Nangle, Paw Paw, was the main speaker at the convention of the Lee County Federation of Women's Clubs at Ashton Wednesday afternoon. He gave a challenging address on the subject, "Woman's Place in a Disturbed Time." He stressed the fact that women are playing an increasingly important role in affairs of the world and said that they have entered every field in our national government except the presidency and that that also was a possibility.

He said that cooperation should be the theme for world affairs and that we must have cooperation or perish. Spiritual values must also be maintained. Power must be left with individuals and not continually taken away as it is in Socialism.

The thought that there is nothing ahead for the world is false according to Nangle. History shows that such problems as taxes, and housing shortages are not new and cited the example of Christ's birth in a strange city because of taxes and in a manger because there was no room in the inn.

He urged women to lean toward the higher and better things of life with tolerance and cooperation. Their effect in the political and economic life of America should be on an ascending scale.

Mr. and Mrs. Nangle furnished music both before and after the business meeting.

Mrs. Raymond Losey, Ashton, county president, presided at the meeting. The invocation was given by the Rev. H. C. Montanus of Ashton. Mrs. Ervin Becker, Ashton Woman's Club president, gave the welcome to which Mrs. Losey responded.

Mrs. William Herbst, of Franklin Grove, second vice-president of the 13th District of the Federation of Women's Clubs gave a message to the group in the place of Mrs. C. D. Rowland, district president of Polo, who was unable to attend because of illness.

Name Delegates
Mrs. Dale Miller, Compton, was elected as the new vice-president to take the place of Mrs. Wilber Fulfs, whose office expired at this time. The terms of Mrs. Losey, president, Dixon, and Mrs. Roy Long, Amboy, secretary-treasurer, continue for another year. Mrs. Glen Pelton, Dixon and Mrs. Carl Rosenkrans, Paw Paw, were elected as delegates to the District convention at Rock Falls, April 19.

Mrs. Charles Johnston, Dixon, was endorsed as a candidate for the office of president of the 13th district.

Mrs. Everett Barnes, Amboy, invited the group to come to Amboy next year for their convention. Seventy-six persons registered for the meeting yesterday.

CJU Plans Supper

Albert Kastner was host recently to the CJU class of the Church of God. Rev. Watkins opened the meeting with a prayer and roll call was answered by everyone asking a true or false question on the resurrection. During the business meeting it was discussed to have a ham supper in May.

Games were played and at the end of the meeting, refreshments were served.

Choral Group Holds Banquet, Elects Officers

"The Community Choral Association of Dixon, and vicinity is only just beginning," was the fact decided at the CCA banquet held at the Nachusa hotel dining room, Tuesday evening.

A banquet was served to 32 members at 6:30 for which the tables were decorated in a musical theme. Dinner music was furnished by Max Holland, and Peter McKune acted as "Master of Ceremonies."

Following the dinner, a short program was presented and featured a vocal solo by Mary Rosecrans, accompanied by Miss Lola Quick, and a vocal trio composed of Joan Greasy, Frances Dippel, and Mildred Coakley.

Election of officers was one of the important features of the business meeting. The new officers were elected as follows: Peter McKune, president; Mary Rosecrans, vice-president; and Charlotte Youngmark, secretary-treasurer.

"Pete" immediately took over the business meeting and thanked director, David E. Dempsey, for his splendid work with Community Choral, and complimented him on his fine work in directing the Easter Cantata, "The Holy City."

Miss Charlotte Youngmark was

Cole Marionettes Here April 7

Under the sponsorship of St. Luke's Choir Guild the Cole Marionettes will present "Thumbelina," Saturday, April 7, at 1:30 and 3:30 p. m. at the Loveland Community House. Thumbelina is Hans Christian Anderson's delightful tale of tiny Thumbelina who experiences many adventures during her most unusual travels from Denmark to tropical climates.

The Coles have appeared in Dixon on two other occasions when they presented "The Tinderness" and "Dick Whittington's Cat." Each year their circus performance is new.

It will be remembered the Cole Marionettes presented a children's program at the Railroad Fair in next to receive the "thanks" of the group. Miss Youngmark has served as secretary-treasurer of CCA for many months, and was congratulated on the splendid job that she has done.

Mr. Dempsey presented each member with a certificate of membership in Community Choral, and thanked the Choral for their wonderful cooperation in presenting "The Holy City." He urged each member to take an active interest in CCA and make it one of the most outstanding musical groups in Dixon.

Chicago. They are well established Pupeteers with four units on the road.

Mr. Cole is an artist as well as a puppeteer and hand carves all of his characters. They are built to scale and he uses his own type of manual which allows more marionettes on the stage at one time.

Party on Monday

Mrs. Mary Ortgieson was hostess to the Highland Avenue club at her home, Monday evening. Games were played and prizes were won by Mrs. Henry Dressel, Mrs. Paul Kelly and Mrs. Adel Keyser. Pal sisters were revealed and new names were drawn.

Miss Judy Ortgieson assisted her grandmother in serving the lunch. One new member, Mrs. Francis Jennings, was welcomed into the group.

Mrs. Norman W. Dietrich will be hostess when the group meets in April.

Creamed hard-cooked eggs and potatoes make a hearty luncheon dish; sprinkle with paprika and finely minced parsley for attractive color. Serve over toast or split hot biscuits.

Nation's Grocers Get Rules For Price Controls; Place 'Markups' for Food Items

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The nation's retail and wholesale grocers today set about shifting a huge volume of food items—costing the public $20,000,000,000 a year—to a new method of price controls.
They are under government orders to complete the transfer between April 5 and April 30. The Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) announced three regulations last night, putting about 60 per cent of all foods under fixed "markup" percentages which the agency said are those in effect before the Korean outbreak. A grocer adds the "markup" percentage to his cost in order to determine his ceiling price.
Here is what the new system means to the country:
First, it means a great many up and down movements in food prices, depending on the store, the locality, and kind of food. Price Director Michael V. DiSalle said "we are sure that there will be more decreases than increases." That was cheerful news for the housewife, but DiSalle added that "a large part" of the net reduction in prices may be cancelled out if farm prices continue to move up.
Must Be Allowed to Rise
Under present law, the wholesale and retail prices of most food products must be allowed to rise when necessary to reflect higher farm prices. DiSalle, facing reporters at a news conference, was asked whether he intends to recommend a change in the law to permit tighter food controls, and he replied, "we're not ready to answer that."
Second, the new system means that DiSalle's OPS now has paved the way for definite dollars-and-cents ceiling prices, figured by the district OPS offices and posted on big charts in the stores.
OPS officials said this was "the single most important aspect" of last night's action.
In Six Months
They said this system of "community pricing" may be reached in about six months. They said they'd like to order it immediately, because it is the most effective and enforceable system of price controls. But they said food prices, in reflecting fluctuations in farm prices, will keep going up and down so rapidly for a while that the posted ceilings might be out of date before the poster could be printed and tacked to the wall. Meantime, officials said the new "markup" or "margin" regulations will keep food prices under effective controls for the next few months—except for changes reflecting farm price fluctuations.

The OPS is following the same pattern that the wartime OPA followed—margin controls and then community prices—but the OPS, profiting by OPA experience, is considerably ahead of the OPA in its timetable.
April 30 Deadline
April 30 is the deadline for grocers to complete their changeover. Any time after April 5, however, a grocer may put each new ceiling price into effect as soon as he has computed it. After April 30, each retail grocer must refigure his ceiling prices every Monday—that is on any items for which he had different cost from the cost on which his existing ceiling was figured.
Under a previous regulation, April 30 is also the deadline for retailers of clothing and house furnishings to change to a new system of margin controls. The main difference is that those retailers must figure their own markup percentages by preparing "pricing charts," whereas the grocers have their percentages fixed by the government on 38 different food categories.
These Are Covered
The three regulations cover canned goods, baby foods, flour, cocoa, coffee, tea, breakfast cereals, shortening, frozen fruits and vegetables, "ayonnoise, rice, margarine, dog and cat foods, crackers, jams and jellies, syrups, and many other items.
They do not cover fresh meats, fresh fruits, fresh vegetables, sugar, milk, bread, ice cream, candy, soft drinks, or alcoholic beverages.
Many of these things—meats for example—will be covered by regulations of their own.
The OPS estimated the number of retail food stores at 560,000 and the number of wholesalers at 10,000.
Retail stores are divided into four groups, and so are wholesale firms. The percentages differ for the groups.
In general, small retail stores are allowed the highest markup percentages, as they were under OPA.

Borrowing Replaces Baseball

It's America's Largest Indoor Modern Pastime

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Baseball is no longer the national pastime. Borrowing is.
The average business office, for example, Aren't there at least twice as many eager borrowers as there are eager baseball fans? Actually, borrowing is today perhaps America's biggest indoor industry.
Some people still frown on borrowing as if it were something immoral or showed a lack of forethought and character. However, that is an old-fashioned view and is dying out.
OVER THE YEARS I have made quite a study of office borrowers because I love to hear all their odd adventures. Why wear out your eyes reading a magazine story at home when you can sit at your own desk in the office and hear a real life story—on the boss's time.
THE BORROWERS seem to fall into certain pigeonholes:
1. The wet-eyed or emergency borrower. This is the type that is in deep trouble. "Our family cat just has to have an operation," he says, "and the veterinarian refuses to lift a scalpel unless I plunk down $25. Please, please, help me save our dear old Tabby."
2. The you're-lucky-to-have-the-chance-to-do-me-a-favor borrower. If you lend this gent enough to buy his children a television set, he also thinks you ought to buy them glasses so they won't hurt their eyes. When it comes to paying you back, he has a memory like a herd of elephants—all stricken with amnesia.
3. THE ROBIN HOOD BORROWER. This type has a heart too big for one chest, and he goes around borrowing for other people. But when you try to collect it back you find Robin Hood is somewhere deep in Sherwood forest.
4. THE "IT ALL ADDS UP" borrower. This is usually a weathered little character who goes around borrowing nickels, dimes, quarters, and dollar bills each week from as many people as he can. He has no intention of repaying, but everyone knows his secret. He is trying to borrow enough to retire on. Give him 30 years and he will, too.
5. THE PACK RAT or compulsive borrower. Every office has at least one of these. Borrowing with them is like kleptomania. They will borrow anything they see on your desk—scissors, paste pots, ash trays, cigarettes, or old love letters.

Claims To Be Oldest Member Of Legion, He's 80 Today

AUGUSTA, ILL.—(AP)—John E. (Dad) Newcomb, who says he is the oldest living member of the American Legion, observed his 90th birthday today.

Newcomb lives in Augusta with two sisters, but celebrated his birthday at the home of a niece, Mrs. Phil Haines, in Danville.

He is a veteran of the Spanish-American war and of World War I. Newcomb, still active in Legion affairs, has been a member of the Augusta post for more than 25 years and of the Adams county voiture of the 40 and 8 for 23 years.

Last October he served as assistant sergeant-at-arms in charge of the American flag at the national Legion convention in Los Angeles. He has since received appointment to this post for life.

He was 37 when he fought in the Spanish-American war as a member of Company F, Fifth infantry regiment, Illinois national guard. During World War I, he served as sergeant major of the 123rd machine gun battalion, 33rd division. He was 58 at the time.

When the United States entered World War II, the 80-year-old Newcomb volunteered his services, but the army gratefully declined. Instead, he helped with scrap drives and war bond sales at home.

Five Senators Suggest Probe Of Gangsters

Expect Approval Of Legislation For Crime Check

SPRINGFIELD, (AP)—A "Little Kefauver" committee to ferret out syndicated crime, gambling and rackets is sought for Illinois.

Five state senators led by Wallace Thompson of Galesburg proposed the sweeping investigation in a bill filed late yesterday.

"It has been charged that hoodlums and racketeers are operating 80 legitimate businesses, and we should know what they are," Thompson said. He is the senate Republican majority leader.

"We have learned from the press that Gov. Stevenson has reported to the Kefauver committee there is evidence that 35 criminal syndicates are operating in Illinois," his statement added.

"Our Duty"
"It is our duty to find out who these syndicate operators are, what they do, and where they operate."

Thompson declared a "careful search for facts" is needed—"not simply a dramatic expose of notorious underworld characters."

The proposed crime investigating committee would get $50,000 to make an 18 month probe. Its findings and recommendations would be laid before the 1953 legislature.

The 10 member legislative committee would have power to subpoena witnesses and compel production of books and records.

Calls for Inquiry
The bill called for an inquiry into "the dealings, if any, between persons engaged in illegal operations and public officials and criminal alliances of any nature."

Thompson said many important gangland figures in Illinois succeeded in evading an appearance before the Kefauver committee of the U. S. senate.

"Out of 126 underworld figures in the entire United States whose income is under scrutiny by the tax authorities, 44 are from Chicago alone," he asserted.

Thousands of slot machines holding federal stamps are operating in Illinois in violation of the law," he added.

"Many open and notorious gambling houses are alleged to be operating in Illinois."

The Illinois investigators would be authorized to look into the policy or numbers racket, traffic in narcotics and any labor rackets.

The bill set forth that Illinois citizens have been "shocked and have become alarmed" at Kefauver revelations of criminal syndicate operations in the state.

Kefauver Says It's Needed
Thompson said Senator Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) declared last week that Illinois needs a permanent crime investigating agency.

The proposed legislative committee, Thompson asserted, is the "nearest agency we can possibly create to accomplish the end" suggested by Kefauver.

The state senate leader said he is confident the legislature will approve the bill.

Joining Thompson as sponsors were Senators Walker Butler and Edward P. Sathel, Chicago Republicans; Elbert S. Smith (R-Decatur) and Russell A. Waters (D-Beverly).

It is estimated that accidents to legs and feet in U. S. industrial plants are responsible for an annual bill of nearly one billion dollars.

Lightweight Coats Herald Spring

By GAILE DUGAS
NEW YORK—(NEA)—Lightweight wool is cut into both the topper and the greatcoat this spring. A wool that weighs only 12 ounces a yard for instance, may have the texture look of a fine, heavy fleece. And a greatcoat cut in this porous wool weighs little more than a dressmaker suit.

A handsome topper designed (left) by Mangone is pure white virgin wool, suitable for summer as well as spring. Mangone gives this topper a long revere collar, detailed sleeves with split cuffs and beautiful white bone buttons. The deep pockets are slanted and detailed to harmonize with the cuffs.

In practically every British mystery film ever made, the sleuth turns up at some point in a greatcoat. Monte-Sano has done the feminine version of a greatcoat (right) this spring. It's a distinct departure from the well-known pyramid.

It's a coat with character, light in weight, yet having the necessary bulky look of the greatcoat. The appearance of fullness is gained by a gored skirt and back. Cuffs are deeply turned back and the collar has long flaring points to be worn curved under or spread wide. Bodice panels are used just above the waistline.

Practical Test

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—A Santa Ana six-year-old listened to his teacher's instructions carefully. Then he put them into practice.

Dialing carefully, he telephoned the police and fire departments. He told the first his home had been robbed. He told the second his home was on fire.

When officers and fire equipment roared up, he explained he was testing the "what to do in an emergency" lesson he learned at school.

Clouds of Locusts

TRIPOLI, (AP)—Swarms of locusts resembling thunder clouds reported to have brought desert caravans of camels to a standstill. The reports came from Derg in the interior.

Large swarms of locusts are reportedly on the move toward the north African coastline from the Nigerian and Gold Coast area.

Legislature Asks Hadacol Not to Use Child Testimonials

SPRINGFIELD, (AP) — The Illinois house yesterday adopted by voice vote a resolution urging the Hadacol company to refrain from using testimonials of children in advertisements.

Introduced Tuesday by Rep. Joseph De LaCour (D-Chicago) the resolution states recent newspaper advertisements by Hadacol contained a testimonial by a 13 year old boy transformed from an underweight weakling to a center on his football team.

Another testimonial was from a mother whose two and three year old daughters "indulge in an occasional nip for their stomach's sake," the resolution said.

It said Hadacol contains from 12 to 14 per cent alcohol and that the use of testimonials by children "appears to be of doubtful propriety."

CURTAIN RICKSHAWS
NEW DELHI, (AP) — Health Minister Shrimati Amrit Kaur told a questioner in parliament that hand-drawn rickshaws are slated for extinction in Delhi by the end of 1952.

She said the Delhi municipal parliament had mapped a program for the gradual elimination of the 150 licensed for the current year. A survey in April, 1947, showed 500 rickshaws plying the streets then.

Cheap Tickets

GREENVILLE, Pa. (AP)—This little western Pennsylvania town has a police clerk for the first time. The clerk is Mrs. Mary Etta Boudreau whose first responsibility will be to install a new system for handling parking tickets.

Motorists will be required to pay only 10 cents for overtime parking if they report to Mrs. Boudreau within 30 minutes after the tickets have been issued. If they're later than that she'll fine them $1.

For the third straight year 12 colleges will participate in the National Invitation basketball tournament in Madison Square Garden, March 10, 12, 13, 15 and 17.

Claims Hair Fell Out After Wave Treatment, Sues

LEWISTOWN, (AP)—Claiming her hair fell out after using a prepared cold wave product, Mrs. Florence M. Jayne of Cuba, Ill., yesterday filed suit for $25,000 damages.

The suit filed in Fulton county circuit court names J. Herman Schriber and Gladys Schriber, operators of a Canton, Ill., beauty and barber shop, and the Helen Curtis Industries, Inc., as defendants.

Mrs. Jayne's suit claims she suffered "great pain, both mental and physical and great disfigurement and humiliation." Her scalp became irritated after a cold wave was administered and her hair began falling out on June 15, 1950, the suit states.

Migration from England to Canada

TORONTO, (AP) — A heavy movement of technical and skilled workers from England to Ontario is under way by sea and air and is expected to be in high gear by mid-April.

Ontario officials dealing with immigration said eight ocean liners have been mustered to bring the immigrants across the Atlantic Ocean in groups of 400 and 500. One United States ship has been diverted to call at Halifax to handle the traffic Trans-Canada Air Lines is landing about 150 persons a week and has a waiting list of about 1,400.

Motorists Must Renew Driver's License May 1

SPRINGFIELD, (AP)—Illinois motorists must renew their drivers licenses starting May 2.

The renewals will be the first since 1948 when the state discontinued one year permits in favor of three year licenses. Secretary of State Edward J. Barrett reminded yesterday.

Under the present system, licenses come up for renewal on a holder's next birth anniversary after May 1. Barrett urged filing of applications 30 days in advance of expiration date.

PRAGUE, (AP) — China will exhibit at the Prague International Trade fair for the first time this year, and the Chinese are taking no chances on being late.

The fair is scheduled from May 30 to June 3, but a Chinese delegation from various ministries in the Communist-led government left Peking in January. Their train was loaded with China's exhibits, which will take up 780 square meters of floor space. They will also visit a trade fair in Leipzig, Germany, and exhibitions in Moscow, Warsaw and Budapest.

Amboy Gym Packed for Sport Night

Faculty Loses To Lindquist Men, 32-24

Profits Cover Cost Of Oxygen Tent for Public Hospital

By HUGH HOUGH
(Telegraph Sports Editor)
AMBOY — An overflow crowd jammed Amboy high school gym here Wednesday night to watch the Lindquist construction company employees defeat the Amboy school district faculty basketball players, 32-24, in a bruising game.

Coach Orval Spurlin scored 18 of his team's 24 points to almost bring victory to the professors by himself. The Lindquist men had built up too big a lead for Spurlin to overcome, however, although he almost pulled the trick in the third quarter.

But basketball at times took a back seat to other activities in this third annual Sport Night sponsored by the Lions club of Amboy.

Oxygen Tent Gained
Highlight of the evening was the announcement that profits from this year's Sport Night would cover the $350 needed to complete payment on the oxygen tent the Lions recently gave to Amboy public hospital.

L. J. Ullensvang, Lions secretary, said any profits left after the oxygen tent had been paid for would go into the club's activity fund to help pay for future civic gifts.

One of the big moments of the program was the crowning of the Sport Night queen, Mary Schwamberger, Amboy high school senior. She led Eleanor Willstead, Janet Beard and Donna Andreas, representatives of the junior, sophomore and freshman classes, who trailed Miss Schwamberger in the order named.

20,000 Votes Cast
More than 20,000 votes were cast in the race for queen at a penny each. Of this total Miss Schwamberger received more than 10,000 votes, or just about half of all that were cast.

The queen candidates were escorted by presidents of the four classes in Amboy high school. They are Bill Harshberger, senior; Richard Full, junior; Ronald Belcher, sophomore, and Don Carroll, freshman.

The standing-room crowd was entertained at halftime of the Faculty-Lindquist game by the Glenn Ikens trio, bone rattler Lee Wallace and by the Jolly Eight, square dancers.

Early arriving spectators watched a volleyball game between members of Amboy high school gym classes.

Professors Fall Behind
In the feature game of the night, the Faculty lost behind 20-9 at halftime and then came with a rush in the third quarter to trail only 22-18, but that was the end of their threat.

This game was a violent one from start to finish. Players from both teams spent much of the evening on the floor as the result of impromptu hip blocks or forgotten footwork.

The schoolmasters found Gene Krahenbuhl, 240 pound guard for Lindquist, an especially tough opponent. He was a stone wall on defense and personally accounted for a great many of the aches and pains the teachers must have awakened with on Thursday morning.

The box score:

Bruins Start Well In Stanley Cup Playoff Series

TORONTO, (AP)—The Boston Bruins, who may well turn out to be the surprise package of the National Hockey league playoffs, today hold the upper hand in their Stanley Cup series with the favored Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Bruins upset the Maple Leafs, 2-0, last night for a vital first-game victory in their best-of-seven semi-final series.

Making the best of their scoring chances and backed by the superlative goaltending of Jack Gelineau, Boston hopped to a 1-0 lead in the first period and added a clinching goal early in the final frame.

The teams play here again Saturday night.

HUGH'S VIEWS OF SPORTS

By HUGH HOUGH

Sports went to work to help save lives in Amboy Wednesday night. Sports helped make possible one of the finest displays of civic loyalty any city could hope to see.

PROBABLY ONE-QUARTER of Amboy's residents, a crowd estimated in excess of 500, filled every permanent seat and every temporary seat that could be set up in Amboy high school gym. A few latecomers stood.

That was the way Amboy turned out to witness the Lions club's third annual "Sport Night."

HOW DID SPORTS help save lives on this occasion? It was like this:

Recently the Lions club gave an oxygen tent to Amboy public hospital. The machine cost more than $700 and the Lions still owed some $350 of that sum—until Wednesday night. Profits from the Sport Night more than erased the balance due.

AMBOY HOSPITAL PATIENTS can use that machine at practically no cost, thanks to the Lions club and the sports fans of Amboy who helped make this Sport Night such a rousing success.

It must have given these people a feeling of real satisfaction when the final announcement about the oxygen tent was made. It was a fine example of what civic pride and civic cooperation can do to make a worthwhile project a success.

OTHER TOWNS HAVE USED sports to promote such projects. Usually with success. Here in Dixon, the Junior Chamber of Commerce helped achieve The Telegraph's Youth Center fund goal with its Old-Timers game last month. Despite foul weather a good crowd attended this event.

Usually these charity nights attract people who might not otherwise attend a sports event. They provide entertainment and help give sports a good name at the same time. The Amboy Lions provided something for everyone in their sports Night. Volleyball, music, square dancing, a queen contest and even some rough-and-tumble basketball should have been enough to satisfy even the most finicky attendee.

IT WAS A COLORFUL SHOW. And the high schools might take a hint from that program to dress up the usually dull halftimes of prep games with a little variety. It doesn't take a Bill Veck to promote such things and the high schools are full of talented kids.

And still speaking of schools, we know about 12 school teachers who would have given most anything to cut classes this morning. Lullaby sales in Amboy were reported brisk today.

GEN KRADLE AND JIM GARTNER, both seniors, have been named co-captains of the 1950-1951 Rock Falls basketball team. Danny Bogott, a junior, won the Rocket free throw award for the second consecutive year.

Awards to the Dixon high school basketball players will be made after the annual spring vacation next week.

ART BOWERS, DIXON athletic director and head track coach, says the spring vacation will be interrupted at least three times for his trackmen.

"We are going to practice Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning next week," he said yesterday. "Otherwise we will lose all we have gained so far this year in practice."

Art still is looking for a good stretch of spring weather so he can take his runners and jumpers outside for some real workouts.

The report is that Lon Scofield, Dixon basketball coach, wowed em in Fisher Monday night when he returned to his old coaching spot to speak at the athletic banquet.

Your Host Gets Death Sentence
ARCADIA, Calif., (AP)—The sentence of death has been passed on Your Host, the 1950 Kentucky Derby favorite, and as game as thoroughbreds come.

Four veterinarians have examined the colt, and the prognosis is not good. The colt was injured at Santa Anita Jan. 13. All have recommended that he be destroyed.

Only the red tape involved in a $250,000 insurance policy is prolonging the pain-wracked existence of a badly-injured animal.

Kolts Ousted From AAU by South Beloit

Blackhawk AC 71, White Eagles 67.

THURSDAY'S PAIRINGS

7:30 p. m.—Kable Kolts vs. White Eagles (consolation).

8:45 p. m.—Blackhawk AC vs. South Beloit (championship).

MT. MORRIS—The Kable Kolts, pre-tourney favorites in the Northern Illinois AAU playoffs being held here, were ousted by South Beloit Legion Wednesday night, 75-70.

This upset sent the South Beloit team to the finals of the tourney against the Blackhawk Athletic club in the White Eagles gym in Rockford Thursday. The consolation game will pit the Kolts against the White Eagles who lost, 71-67, to the Blackhawks in the first game Wednesday night.

The Hawks had to rally in the third quarter to tie the score at 51-51 after trailing 33-28 at halftime.

Thursday's consolation game will start at 7:30 p. m. It will be followed by the championship game at 8:45 p. m.

Study Cage Rule Changes

MINNEAPOLIS, (AP)—Basketball's law makers are studying possible rule changes today that would increase the severity of the penalty for a personal foul and also would change the college game from two 20-minute halves to four 10-minute quarters.

The joint rules committee, which establishes the code for the game, is made up of representatives from the NCAA, the high school federation, AAU, YMCA and the Canadian basketball group.

A questionnaire sent out by the committee brought answers to show that college and AAU coaches, where the game is played in halves, preferred the quarter system. The rule is expected to be changed sometime today.

Action is not expected on increasing severity of the penalty for a personal foul although J. Mark Good of Williamsport, Pa., chairman of the group said there was considerable sentiment for it.

Two proposals were studied last year and those results now are being inspected by the committee.

Some 10,000 high school games in Illinois were conducted the past season under a rule in which a team could not decline a free throw. It met with 100 per cent approval.

Almost as many games were played by New York high schools under a rule in which all personal fouls in the final three minutes netted the offended team two free throws that could not be declined. It met with general approval.

The committee has given the Big Seven conference permission to play some games next season under a rule which all free throws must be attempted. If the try is unsuccessful, or if the last of two is missed, the ball would continue in play. If the free throws are made, the team which made them would take the ball out of bounds.

Johnny Berardino, the veteran utility infielder, would be grabbed by at least one club, namely the Cleveland Indians, if they could get him back. But Johnny probably will do most of the Browns' third-basing if Roy Sievers continues to have trouble with his throwing arm.

Lollar Not Bad
After that, let's see whom we can sell. A lot of baseball men like catcher Sherman Lollar, who was picked up from the Yanks in one of those trades. He hit 280 and had 65 RBIs last year, including 13 homers. Stubby Overmire, the veteran southpaw, would be helpful to some club which has trouble beating the Yankees. He knocked the Bombers back three times last year and lost to them only once.

That about does it. Frank Saucier, the rookie phenom who hit .343 for San Antonio last year, might have become one of those $100,000 sales items within a year or two if he had reported. But at last account he still didn't wish to play for $5,000 a year.

Infield Not Great
Witt almost surely would encounter strong sales resistance if he tried to market the bulk of his infield. First-baseman Henry Arft hit .268 last year, second-baseman Snuffy Stirrweiss .218, and shortstop Tommy Upton .237. Among them, they hoisted four homers.

Boh Young, a slick fielder from Baltimore, is giving Stirrweiss a rattle for his job.

Besides Garver and Overmire, the club's starting pitchers—and the term starting is used advisedly—figure to be Cliff Fanning, Dick Starr, Al Widmar and perhaps the veteran Russ Bauers, who is back up after a 13-6 year at Baltimore. They would draw few bids if they were placed on sale in a package deal.

Neither would Ray Coleman and Jim Delsing, outfielders, and Les Moss, and Clyde Klutz, spare catchers.

The Minneapolis Lakers, driving for their second straight National Basketball association championship, entertain the Rochester Royals tonight in the opening game of a best-of-five semi-final series.

The Lakers, who won the Western division title by three games over Rochester, rule as favorites to retain their NBA championship. But Rochester figures to be a tough nut to crack.

During the regular season, the Royals held Minneapolis to a 4-4 standstill.

Meanwhile, in an Eastern division semi-final game, the Syracuse Nationals play host to the New York Knickerbockers in the second game of their best-of-five set.

The Knickerbockers whipped Syracuse 103-92 at Madison Square Garden last night to take a 1-0 lead in games.

SPORT NIGHT QUEEN

QUEEN MARY SCHWAMBERGER reigns over Amboy Sport Night Wednesday. She received more than 10,000 votes at a penny a vote to bring the honor to the senior class of Amboy high school. All money went into oxygen tent charity fund. Behind Miss Schwamberger are the candidates representing other classes. They are, left to right: Donna Andreas, freshman; Eleanor Willstead, junior, and Janet Beard, sophomore. Presidents of the four classes who escorted the candidates stand in the year. They are Bill Harshberger, senior; Richard Full, junior; Ronald Belcher, sophomore and Don Carroll, freshman.

BROWNS PROSPECTS

How Long Can League Support Hapless Browns, Writer Asks

By GAYLE TALBOT

PHOENIX—(AP)—There isn't a nicer group of men in baseball than the official family of the St. Louis Browns, nor a more popular manager than Zach Taylor. And with that you have about summed up the situation.

How long the American league can afford to go along with a club which drew only 247,131 customers to its home park last year and which conceivably could attract fewer in the coming campaign is one of those things baseball men wonder about when they run out of other topics.

The outfit Zach is leading down through Texas doesn't look any better than the one which finished seventh last year and was dead last both in club hitting and fielding. It wouldn't be fair to say it looks worse, but it is a fact that the team lost a couple of its better players to the service during the winter.

Taylor Still Happy
Taylor is happy—that is, as happy as a Brownie manager can get—that Pres. Bill DeWitt took a firm grip on himself and refused to let off any more talent at the winter meeting. It's the first time, Zach says, that he has had practically all the boys back whom he told goodbye last fall. He wasn't asked why he considered this good.

There are only two players on the roster this spring who would be snapped up for big money if DeWitt sent out an auction announcement. Ned Garver, a fine young right-handed pitcher, would fetch the most. He won only 13 games last year while losing 18, but his earned-run average of 3.39 was second in the league among hurlers who worked 10 or more complete games.

Lenhardt Would Sell
Outfielder Don Lenhardt probably would sell second high, being one of the league's better extra-base clouters. His batting average of .273 last season was deceptive. He slashed 22 homers and drove across 81 scores. His 131 hits were good for 231 bases.

After that DeWitt might have to use a little sales talk. Ken Wood, another outfielder, possibly would find an eager taker or two, even though he hit only .225. He has one of the greatest throwing arms in the game.

Johnny Berardino, the veteran utility infielder, would be grabbed by at least one club, namely the Cleveland Indians, if they could get him back. But Johnny probably will do most of the Browns' third-basing if Roy Sievers continues to have trouble with his throwing arm.

Brodson May Confer With Tug Wilson

Milwaukee Bettor Tells of Suspicion Of Big 10 Referee

CHICAGO—(A P)—A Milwaukee sports gambler says he will tell Big Ten Commissioner K. L. (Tug) Wilson the name of a Western conference basketball official he accuses of "irregularities" and back up the charge with "iron-clad proof."

The admitted gambler is Sidney A. Brodson. He testified before the Kefauver crime committee in Washington, D. C., last Saturday of his, and other gamblers' suspicions of a Big Ten official.

Wilson said he is willing to meet Brodson in Chicago to discuss the allegation. He has asked the crime committee for a copy of Brodson's testimony made under oath to review before the meeting.

'Suspicious' Regrettable
"The fact that the 'suspicious' of an admitted gambler have been given wide attention and distribution is very regrettable," said Wilson in a prepared statement. "I, as commissioner, am determined to investigate the entire matter as rapidly and thoroughly as possible and I am already in contact with the senate committee."

Brodson said in Milwaukee last night that he is willing to disclose the official's name to Wilson and "would like to cooperate as much as possible."

The Big Ten uses 27 or 28 "various" officials during the basketball season.

Brodson told the Chicago Tribune he can "supply iron-clad proof to Mr. Wilson of this official's irregularities."

"I prefer to delay the meeting for a week or two—I am on the front page right now and would like to get off," Brodson said.

Brodson explained one reason for his suspicion.

"Although it was almost impossible to learn until late of the day of a game what Big Ten officials were assigned to work," he said, "I noticed that always around 4:30 p. m., there was a lot of betting on the game the suspected official was working."

"Most of the money came from the east. This happened so often when this referee was assigned a game that I became suspicious and would lay off his games. There were many other gamblers who did the same."

Dixon Baseball Meeting Draws 16 Players
Sixteen Dixon area baseball players reported Wednesday night for an organizational meeting of Dixon's 1951 baseball team, general manager Armand Riopelle reported today.

Riopelle said several more players have indicated their interest in playing this year and are expected to be added to the list later.

Golden Gloves Box Europeans in Stadium Tonight amateur boxing champions from eight nations are expected to make their best post-war showing against Chicago's Golden Gloves winners in tonight's 14th international bouts at Chicago Stadium.

A crowd of between 16,000 and 18,000 fans is assured for the colorful show which the Americans have thoroughly dominated.

Europe tied the Golden Gloves in 1948, lost 5-3 in 1949 after forcing the Americans to take the last two fights to win, and dropped a 6-2 decision last year. The Europeans' only team victory in the entire series was in 1939, 5-3.

Ferrier, Mangrum Continue Tee Duel
WILMINGTON, N. C., (AP)—Jim Ferrier and Lloyd Mangrum, a couple of dead-eye dicks when it comes to nailing down golfing prize money, carried their rivalry into Wilmington for the $10,000 azalea open tournament which began today.

Ferrier, who has picked up $7,400 this month with three victories in Florida and a second at Greensboro three days ago, has passed Mangrum in the race. The big San Franciscan, long a top Australian amateur before turning pro a decade ago, has won $9,662 this year to $8,611 for Mangrum, who plays out of Chicago.

Business May Be Prudent in Expanding to Meet Inflation

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK, (AP)—How prudent are businessmen in planning to plunk out a record $23.9 billion this year for new plants and equipment?

by doing so industrialists will be taking the best, almost the only, way to beat inflation. Prices can be held down by producing more goods and licking scarcities before they develop. This view holds that civilian demand will expand enough to take up any slack when rearmament needs a smaller part of the national output.

May Be Optimistic

Another school holds that many businessmen may be far too optimistic in their estimates of future markets for their goods. Expansion plans may be based on confusing a spurt of scarce buying by the public for a lasting demand.

The building will be done at high costs, both for material and labor, and for financing. Interest rates on long-term borrowing for plant expansion have been going up. Issues floated this week are costing corporations more than at any time since the start of the last war.

Have Little Choice

In the case of expanding plant and equipment for the production of defense goods, businessmen have little choice. Capacity must be increased to meet the nation's armament goals.

But government economists say that there has also been a big spurt in plans for non-essential plants and equipment. And the government may try to put the brakes on such construction outlays, both to save scarce materials and to curb inflationary trends.

Estimates Climb

The department of commerce and the securities and exchange commission report that businessmen's estimates of how much they'll spend this year on expansion have grown nine per cent since December. They may grow still more as new capacity needs become apparent.

As of now, businessmen plan to spend $23.9 billion, 29 per cent more than last year, and 24 per cent more than the previous record year of 1948. By comparison, such expenditures came to only $8.2 billion in 1941.

British Mission Leaves Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, (AP)—A British military mission, which has been training the Ethiopian army since 1942, will be withdrawn in the near future. An official Ethiopian government statement said the decision "reflects the further development of Ethiopia in the organization of her own affairs" and is also due "to the increasingly heavy demands on British manpower and financial re-

'Magic' Spell Brings Slaughter

KHARTOUM, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, (AP)—Fear of magic resulted in five deaths in a village in French Equatorial Africa, just across the Sudan border, according to reports from Yambio, in the Sudan's Bahr El Ghazal province.

A woman who was expecting a child was being attended by two other women. Her husband, entering the hut, thought the women were casting magic spells on his wife. He speared them both to death. A third woman on a visit to the hut was also speared and died two days later.

Meanwhile relatives of the slain women killed the husband of the pregnant woman, who then died from complications.

Debris from Missing Plane Found at Sea

LONDON, (AP)—A U. S. destroyer has picked up part of a charred crate known to have been aboard the giant U. S. transport plane which vanished last Friday with 53 American airmen, it was announced today.

A spokesman for the U. S. Third air division said the debris was found last night by the destroyer Benner about 600 miles south of Ireland. It was identified as a piece of the packing for a spare gasoline tank carried as cargo on the missing four-engined Globemaster.

The plane vanished on Good Friday during a flight from Lime stone, Me., to the Mildenhall air base in England. The search continued today with 51 planes in the air.

Bride Braves Gas

SANTA ANA, Calif., (AP)—Barbara Moore, a lady Leatherneck at nearby El Toro Marine base, never dreamed she'd need a gas mask to get married. But one of the gadgets averted a postponement of her marriage to overseas-bound Pfc. Robert Daniels. The couple were to be wed two days before Daniels shoved off. Just before the ceremony, the bride-to-be discovered her barracks locked and sealed with her trousseau inside while a fumigating crew was filling the building with gas. In resourceful Marine tradition, Miss Moore borrowed a workman's gas mask, waded in and recovered her trousseau. The wedding was only slightly delayed.

Rubbed Wrong

LOA, Utah, (AP)—Even porcupines can be friendly, but you must know which way to rub 'em.

Perry L. Jackson, tourists' guide, found a porcupine asleep. He didn't know how to handle the little animal with the sharp quills. He tried to rout it with his hunting cap. He got a capful of quills.

His brother, J. Worthen Jackson, soothed the homely bark eater, stroked him and even picked him up.

Nash Rambler

SETS ALL-TIME RECORD

31.05 MILES PER GALLON

IN 1951 MOBILGAS ECONOMY RUN!

Here is proof positive that the Nash Rambler is the most economical full-size car on the road... official proof that you can expect to go farther on every gallon of gas in a Rambler Airflyte.

For in America's blue-ribbon stock car event—the 1951 Mobilgas Economy Run from Los Angeles to the Grand Canyon—the Rambler smashed all previous records for the Run... covered the 840.05 miles on just 27.05 gallons... averaging 31.05 miles a gallon! That's the thrifty performance you've been looking for.

In setting this all-time record, the Rambler carried 4 passengers with driver and averaged over 41 miles an hour. The course covered all types of terrain—deserts, mountains, city and highway driving... with snow, rain and head winds. Yet never before had any car in this economy run gone so far on so little gasoline!

Every Nash Airflyte entrant—Statesman, Ambassador and Rambler—was a trophy winner in its class... smashing evidence that Nash is your best bet for the years ahead!

'Just Send Along Hedy and Keep Your Old Car'

Box-Top Contest Judges Think That's Best Jingle They Ever Read- But It Didn't Win a Thing in Race Where Odds Reach Million-to-One

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEW YORK, (NEA)—Contests always look so easy. You just write a few words, clip off the top of a box, mail in your entry and wait for the armored car with your money. The only trouble is that usually hundreds of thousands of other people have the same idea.

Which means that the odds against winning the top prize in most contests range from 500,000 to 1,000,000-to-1. But, despite the odds, few people can resist the lure of the box-top bonanza.

Behind the contest scene is a smoothly-efficient concern, The Reuben H. Donnelley Corp., which engineers about 90 per cent of the nation-wide contests. They inherit all the headaches, from the initial planning stage until the last indignant letter from a sore loser is answered.

The first problem of contest planners is what kind of a contest to plan. The Donnelley people say the choice is limited in actual practice, to four basic types:

1. The old stand-by "25 words or less" essay type. You're supposed to tell why you like Old Aunt Martha's Cheerful Chutney with a stated number of words almost invariably 25.
2. The naming contest. If a sponsor wants to launch a new product or a new advertising symbol, you suggest the name. Usually, you have to add a 25-word thesis on why you like the name, as a tie-breaker.
3. The jingle contest. The sponsor gives you a few lines of a jingle, and you add on a last line to rhyme. Sometimes, you write a whole verse.
4. The slogan contest. In this one, you simply write a catchy slogan for the product.

It really doesn't matter which contest is used, as far as response is concerned.

The same thing applies to prizes. The Donnelley people say that cash prizes pull better than merchandise prizes but they all do well. The only kind of merchandise that consistently lures more entries than plain folding money is fancy fur coats.

But almost always the fur coat winner, if he (or she) has a choice, will take cash instead of the coat. Which leaves contest planners a little confused about human nature.

The Donnelley experts write the rules with great care. They point out that a contest entry legally constitutes a contract. They take no chances on embarrassing loopholes in the rules.

Donnelley's judges think there are a lot of dumb-bells running around loose. They estimate that almost one-third of all entries are automatically disqualified for violations of simple rules.

Many people forget to sign their names. Others sign their names, but forget to enclose an entry. If the contest says "25 words," some people write more. Twenty-six words and you're out.

Then there's the "proof of purchase," which is the technical term for the label or box-top. Many entrants forget this completely or send one from a competitor's product. Sometimes, when asked for the box front, they'll send the back or the side or the bottom.

The old "reasonably accurate facsimile" is a thing of the past. The Post Office no longer requires that provision. The "facsimile" idea was always good for a laugh, like the time a woman sent in the picture of a man with a big grin.

Although it didn't win a thing, Donnelley officials like to quote one jingle as the best they ever read. It was in a contest to write a four-liner about somebody's favorite brunette, and read:

My favorite brunette
Is Hedy Lamarr

"TWENTY-FIVE WORDS OR LESS." Mrs. Henrietta G. Davis (top center), America's leading contest judge, checks entries with her staff during final stages of picking a box-top contest winner.

She explained, "Here is the face, smile you wanted."

All Donnelley judges are college-trained and specially-instructed. But not everybody can be a judge. One man resigned after three days, on the verge of a nervous collapse. He couldn't stand the strain. Donnelley had to fire another, a Ph.D. when they found his standards were too high. He didn't think anybody deserved to win.

Judging thousands of entries is done by a process of elimination, gradually weeding out the poorer ones. First to go are the jingles that don't rhyme, the 25-word essays that don't make sense and the slogans that are echoes of previous winners.

Then the entries are read again and again, with the judges getting tougher and tougher. The ranks are thinned with each reading.

The final judging, when only the best entries remain, is the work of Donnelley executives. This is done on a "blind" basis, with the entry itself visible but not the name or address of the entrant. Each of 18 executives rates the finalists and their individual ratings are tabulated to determine the ultimate winner.

Once the winner is picked, he is investigated. The winner must sign an affidavit, swearing that the prize-winning entry was his own work.

One woman winner resigned, saying she had religious scruples against swearing and couldn't sign the affidavit. Donnelley substituted the word "affirm" for "swear" and she got her money.

Donnelley men are kept busy answering irate letters. Indignant contestants insist they've been gypped out of their rightful prize. Frequent letters are received from people who generously offer to split the booty with the judges, a bribe that is quickly and firmly rejected. But every letter that comes in is answered, promptly and politely.

Mt. Morris Boy Scouts to Hold Paper Drive

MT. MORRIS—The Mt. Morris Boy Scouts will conduct a paper drive March 31. This is the first of the four paper drives to raise money for the annual Fourth of July celebration.

Society Guest
Virgil E. Goodrich has been named by Donald R. Jennings, president of the Illinois Society of Certified Accountants as a guest of the society at its semi-annual awards dinner Thursday, March 22. He was among the 103 successful candidates awarded the CPA certificate out of 627 men and women who took examinations in November.

Testing Service
Farmers who would like to have their oats, clover or other farm seeds tested may have this service free at the high school. The FFA chapter members will make the germination tests.

Girl Scout Fair
The Mt. Morris Girl Scouts are presenting a Girl Scout fair Saturday, March 31, at the Township hall. There will be exhibits from each troop. The fair will be from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. with a program at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m., which will feature songs, a square dance, a minstrel and a play.

The eighth grade troop will provide a refreshment booth. The leaders will be assisted by Mrs. Leland Rittenhouse, chairman of the Girl Scout council, and members of the Girl Scout troop committees.

Looses Shirt

TULARE, Calif., (AP)—A N. Hickman lost his shirt playing pool. He told police he shed his flannel shirt during a warm game in a snooker parlor and when the game was over the shirt was gone.

This is why political direction of the Korean war has been and still is deplorable.

Had Been Critical
This defense of MacArthur comes from a newspaper in a country which has been very critical of the commander. There has been considerable feeling there that the general is too much of a one-man band and has exceeded his prerogatives.

Who decides what his prerogatives are? Well, he commands a United Nations army which fights under the U.N. flag. However, the peace organization has divested itself of responsibility by declaring that the United States is its agent to maintain a unified command. So it's up to Washington.

Moscow must be no end pleased over any Allied bickering.

SINGER WITH A LURE—Arriving in New York by air, Metropolitan Opera tenor Set Svanholm and Scandinavian Airlines hostess Kirsten Hox try out a pair of lures—Scandinavian Bronze Age horns that date from between 1500 and 400 B.C. They were used 3000 years ago to invoke the gods at sowing and harvest festivals, for cult rites and perhaps in fighting and hunting.

Not Millionaires But Not Paupers

SIDNEY, Australia, (AP)—Some of the passengers on the round-the-world liner Caronia stepped ashore here recently when the ship docked and said they were unhappy about the ship's reputation as being on a "millionaires' cruise."

Lewis Cole, owner of a chain of Kentucky self-service stores referred to newspaper reports which have called the Caronia the "millionaire liner" and stated that all the passengers were "nice people who do not like all the money publicity." He added that while the ship was certainly not making a poor man's trip, the big percentage of passengers were far from being millionaires. The Caronia is carrying 233 passengers, mostly Americans, on a 104-day cruise.

Price Index In Decline

NEW YORK, (AP)—Wholesale food prices as measured by the Dun & Bradstreet index, dropped this week to the lowest level since the end of January.

The index, at $7.21, compared with $7.23 last week and was lowest since $7.17 on Jan. 30. A year ago it was $5.79.

The figure represents the total cost at wholesale of one pound each of 31 foods in general use. Just before the Korean war broke out last June, the index was $5.96. The highest level reached since then was $7.31 on Feb. 20. The lowest was $6.48 last Oct. 10. The record high: $7.36 on July 13, 1948.

Bed Holds Woman Captive 2 Hours

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Mrs. Alice Hollenbeck, 83, was held captive by a folding bed for two hours. She walked into a closet and the door slammed shut behind her. The shock brought a folding bed down on her, wedging her against the wall. A neighbor, hearing her cries, called the fire department. They had to saw a two-foot hole in the door to get her out—unhurt.

U. N.'s Korean Policy Squabble Lends Fuel to Red Propaganda

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
The head men in Moscow may be rocking with belly laughs over the complaints among the democracies about the political and military conduct of the Korean war.

Such dissatisfaction perhaps is worth more to the Muscovites than legions on the battlefield. It not only may help them in the military sense but it could provide propaganda for the spread of Communism.

Rather typical of recent criticism was that voiced yesterday by Prime Minister Nehru of India in parliament. He characterized Gen. Douglas MacArthur's recent peace-talk offer to the North Korean and Chinese Reds as an "extraordinary development fraught with grave consequence for all countries concerned."

Nehru Objects
"Certainly no field commander is going to lay down the policies of the government of India," declared Nehru. "Political policies are laid down by governments, not commanders in the field."

The prime minister had in mind MacArthur's recent statement that he was ready to confer with the enemy commander "to find any military means whereby the realization of the political objectives of the United Nations in Korea might be accomplished without further bloodshed."

One can't dismiss lightly such a statement coming from the head of an Asiatic nation of 300,000,000 people. His views are bound to sway a host of folk, especially since his influence extends beyond the borders of his own country.

London Comment
The London Daily Express sums the situation up in an editorial declaring "It is time the hounding of MacArthur was brought to an end." The Express says the real quarrel between the general and his critics is over their proposal that he should halt at the 38th parallel. He maintains that isn't sensible as a military proposition.

"A halt at the parallel," declared the Express, "would simply mean giving gratuitous advantage to the enemy which might be paid for with Allied lives. In a military sense the parallel does not exist, but in the political field it looms very large indeed. Our leaders cannot decide where one begins and the other ends."

Salads Go With Spring

FISH AND VEGETABLE SALAD is a real eye-catcher.

By GAYNOR MADDOX

NEA Staff Writer

Spring calls for dishes that have sparkle and tang, that look fresh, cool, crisp, to spark the tired end-of-winter appetite. A fish and vegetable salad, garnished with green pepper slices, tomatoes and olives, served on a bed of crisp lettuce catches the eye.

white fish, cooked (cod, hake, perch), 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1½ cups milk, 1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, salt and pepper, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Melt butter, add flour and blend. Gradually stir in milk and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Soften gelatin in cold water. Dissolve in hot sauce.

Season with salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Add fish; pour into the bottom half of a fish mold rinsed with cold water; set in refrigerator.

Vegetable Layer: One tablespoon unflavored gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, ¼ cup boiling water, 1 bouillon cube, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 tablespoon chili sauce, 1½ cups club soda, well chilled, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, ½ cup shredded carrot and celery.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water, add to gelatin and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add onion, chili sauce, cool. Slowly pour in chilled carbonated water. Add parsley, carrot and celery. Pour onto set fish layer and return to refrigerator to set firmly.

For a party luncheon, serve with hot crisp rolls, chilled soft drinks. Keep them iced until just before serving. Their tangy carbonation is better that way.

Egg Aspic (Serves 4)

Three hard-cooked eggs, ½ cup cooked peas and carrots, 1 tablespoon gelatin (1 envelope), 2 tablespoons cold water, 2 bouillon cubes, 1 cup boiling water.

Slice eggs. Arrange in bottom of 6-inch, buttered pie pan and garnish with carrots and peas. Fill with layers of sliced egg. Soften gelatin in cold water.

Dissolve bouillon cubes with gelatin in boiling water. Pour over eggs and chill in refrigerator until firm. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Will Base Jobless Pay on 1950 Wages Beginning on April 1

Benefits paid under the Illinois Unemployment Compensation act for weeks of employment starting on or after April 1, 1951, will be based on wages received for insured work during the calendar year 1950, Manager Tillie Kalen of the unemployment compensation office at 112 West 2nd street, Rock Falls, reminded workers of this area today.

"Under terms of the law, the event of a new benefit year on April 1 involves an automatic shifting of the base period from the calendar year 1949, to 1950," Manager Kalen explained. "That means that benefits for the next 12 months beginning with April 1, will be paid on the basis of workers' 1950 insured wages. Neither earnings received during 1949, nor unclaimed or uncollected benefits on such wages will enter into the determination of eligibility or the amount of benefits payable to a worker for unemployment after the April 1 date."

"To qualify for job insurance payments after April 1," she pointed out, "the worker must have been paid earnings of at least $300 for insured work during the calendar year of 1950. Insured work, generally, means employment in commerce, and industry for employers who made payroll contributions to the Illinois Unemployment trust fund and who usually engage six or more workers."

Manager Kalen added that, besides the earnings requirement, a worker must also be registered for work with the Illinois State Employment Service. The worker must show that he is actively seeking work by his own efforts, that he is able to work full-time, and is available to accept any offer of suitable work.

The weekly benefit amount ranges from a minimum of $10 to a maximum of $25. The total drawings allowed from unemployment during a benefit year range from a minimum of $10 to a maximum of 26 times the worker's determined weekly benefit award. Both the weekly award and the total drawings allowed depend on the amount of insured wages paid to the claimant in the base period, which for unemployment on or after April 1 will be the calendar year 1950.

Americans Leave Czechoslovakia

PRAGUE, (AP)—A diplomatic survey just completed here shows that only four American firms and agencies are still in operation on a permanent basis in Czechoslovakia. This compares with 50 or so two and a half years ago.

The four are the Associated Press, the United Press, the Motion Picture Export association and the buying office for eastern Europe of the R. H. Macy Company, New York department store.

They employ 42 Czechoslovak citizens. All have American resident managers, but Macy's manager went back to New York last fall and has not returned.

Living Costs Strike Church

VANCOUVER, (AP)—The cost of living is hitting the churches like everything else. H. L. Hutton, chairman of the stewards committee of St. Andrews-Wesley church here, said higher street-car fares may be keeping suburban members from supporting the downtown church.

Company?--Serve Pork Roast

SUCCULENT PORK ROAST is center of an appealing menu.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer
For "company" dinner select a succulent pork roast. Fresh pork is in good supply, and a roast beautifully browned, makes a wonderful gala dish.
How does this menu appeal to you? Sparkling cranberry juice or well chilled tomato juice comes first. With the roast served baked sweet potatoes, Frenched green beans or asparagus with butter-browned slivered almonds, then a grapefruit and orange salad. For dessert, serve a frosted white cake with a delicately tinted coconut.
Beth Bailey McLean, director of Home Economics, Swift & Co., planned the menu and gives these instructions for roasting the pork.
For ease in carving the rib or loin roast of pork, have the meat dealer saw the backbone free from the ribs. In self service counters this will be done before the meat is wrapped. The backbone is left in place to act as a rack to hold the meat off the pan during the cooking, but is removed before the meat is brought to the table for carving.
Place the roast, fat side up and resting on the sawed-off backbone, in a low roasting pan in a 325 deg. F. oven. For a well browned, tempting coating on the roast, spread a mixture of brown sugar, mustard and vinegar on the fat. This will melt and run down over the surface and produce a beautifully browned appearance at the end of the cooking time.
Plan to roast the meat 35 to 45 minutes per pound or until a roast meat thermometer, inserted in the thickest portion of the meat, registers 185 Deg. F., indicating that the meat is thoroughly cooked.
For the special festive touch garnish with spiced pears.

Bootleg Flowers

PARIS, (AP)—A Paris bootleg flower market is flourishing. Oddly enough, it is located near police headquarters and a bridge over the Seine is the place where the biggest business is done.
Bootleg sellers pay no rent for stalls, and generally operate without licenses. The flower sellers say they do this to eliminate the middle man. They operate in the pre-dawn, just before the day shift policemen take over from the ones who have been working since midnight. They have to look out for ambitious police, cops who have had arguments with their wives or ones whose stomachs are acting up. Otherwise they get along without interference.

NOW...make HOMEMADE HOT ROLLS
this entirely new way...

Just spoon out the batter

HERE'S ALL YOU DO TO MAKE NEW BATTER-METHOD SPOON ROLLS!

No kneading! You just add yeast to water, stir in mix, beat 100 strokes--then let rise.

No shaping! Simply stir down batter in about 20 strokes and spoon the batter into muffin tins. Fill cups half full.

No guesswork on rising! Rolls are ready to bake when the batter has risen to the edge of muffin cup and is rounded in center.

• NO KNEADING • NO SHAPING • NO GUESSWORK ON RISING • UP TO 1 HOUR FASTER • GUARANTEED RESULTS

These homemade rolls are plump, light—and very simply prepared from a batter—not a dough. You don't handle it. You don't knead it or shape it—just spoon it into the pans. (Directions are right on the package.) Important: Perfect results can be guaranteed only with Pillsbury Hot Roll Mix. Your own favorite rolls are quicker and better, too, with this mix. Get a package—and see.

Too Careful

LONG BEACH, Calif., (AP)—A thief here ruined his own getaway plans by locking himself out of his car.

Mrs. Jesse R. Fuentes told officers that a tall man knocked her down and snatched her purse when she stepped from a bus. She said he ran to an auto parked nearby, fumbled at the door handle, searched in his pockets then ran away. Police identified the car as stolen property.

'Cyclone Jones' Chases Twisters With 'Sferics'

HERBERT L. JONES: Some day, a cyclone-spotting network.

By RICHARD M. CALDWELL
STILLWATER, Okla. (NEA)—An engineering wizard named "Cyclone Jones" is trying to bankrupt nature's cyclone business, which some years takes as much as $350 million in property losses and 7,000 lives in the south and southwest.

Herbert L. (Cyclone) Jones is professor of electrical engineering at Oklahoma A & M College in Stillwater, where he has set up the only college detection laboratory in the nation to trace cyclonic origins.

With it, he hopes to be able some day to speed warnings to communities in the path of the destructive winds.

Jones spots the gathering cloud funnels by means of "Sferics," which he describes as "the static or kerrumping noise heard on the radio" when there's lightning in the vicinity.

His detectives are three screens, which look like small television sets or radar scopes. With these, he watches for wind columns and funnel-shaped clouds within a 200-mile radius.

But as Cyclone Jones' research develops, the radius will grow much broader. A series of such stations could serve as a cyclone-spotting network for a wide area, and save lives and property by giving people in the path of a twister time to prepare for it.

An intense, moustached professor who chews up dozens of black cigars while he works, Jones attacks cyclones with a scientific background that includes kinetics, electronics, mechanics, radio engineering, the theory of alternating currents, physics and meteorology, all of which he has studied or taught since he graduated from the University of Oregon in 1926.

He first tangled with cyclones in 1946, when he was driving to Oklahoma to take his present job. He was caught in the marginal gales of a cyclone, and as his car was being sanded down by nature, decided what his future research project would be.

Hurricane detection methods developed at the University of Florida and thunderstorm study at the New Mexico School of Mines gave him a starting point.

But he has to work fast with his three electronic "eyes" because cyclones have a way of sneaking up on people.

Cheap Research

WASHINGTON, (AP) — When it comes to research in cereals, even a penny's worth may produce a bonanza. The annual cost of federal research in cereal crops costs only one-third of a cent per acre cultivated, says Dr. K. S. Quisenberry, plant scientist of the U. S. Department of agriculture.

The money spent on all federal and state research in soil and agronomy amounts to only 17 cents for each $100 of the total farm value of the cereal crops, Quisenberry declares. From this modest investment has come the use of corn hybrids, which have boosted annual harvests by 750,000,000 bushels per year, and many other improvements in grain.

DRESSED IN ROYAL STYLE—Wearing striking spring ensembles, Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain, followed by Princess Margaret, arrives at the London home of Lord Rothermere to see a private fashion show. It displayed 60 dresses from the spring collections of Britain's "top ten" fashion designers.

TRIPLE THREAT—At 24 years of age, Craig Lewis Kaminski has accomplished a three-man job. He is one of very few who have been graduated from Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wis., with a 3.976 average out of a possible 4.0. While in school he worked 39 hours a week as a telephone serviceman and still found time to aquire and maintain a family of four. He's pictured holding two-year-old daughter Linda, while his wife, Evelyn, holds Kathleen, 17 months, and Patricia, three years old.

Inflation

KHARTOUM, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, (AP)—The bride price was raised from 20 to 50 spears each, worth about $10, at the annual chiefs meeting of Zande district in the southern Sudan. The chiefs also agreed the price must be paid in full by the prospective husband before the marriage becomes legal.

SERGEANT'S SIESTA—Caught napping with his boots off—not to mention his socks—was Sgt. Bob Balhorn of Sydney, Australia, during a quieter moment behind the Korean battlefield. NEA-Acme Staff Photographer Bert Ashworth took this worm's-eye view while lying down on the job himself.

Cool Weather Follows Rain

(By the Associated Press)

More rain doused wide areas of the country today and some of the wet belts were in line for cooler weather.

Rain fell from Lake Superior to the Gulf of Mexico and from Missouri to the Middle Atlantic states. The cooler weather and northerly winds of 35-45 miles an hour through the Great Plains changed the rain to snow over parts of southeast Kansas. Flurries also hit as far south as Oklahoma City. Cooler weather was in prospect for the North Central region.

The southern states and parts of the middle Mississippi valley got the heaviest precipitation. Falls at Tupelo, Miss., measured 5.26 inches in 24 hours and the fall measured 5.91 inches in Birmingham.

It was fair weather from the northern Great Plains to the West Coast except in northwest Washington, which reported rain. Mild weather continued throughout the far Southwest. Temperatures were above normal east of the Mississippi river and below seasonal levels over the Southern Plains.

PUBLIC NOTICE
Notice of Proposed Change in Gas Schedules

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS hereby gives notice to the public that it has filed with the Illinois Commerce Commission on March 15, 1951, a new schedule of rates for gas service, Schedule G-7.

On December 15, 1950, Western United Gas and Electric Company and Illinois Northern Utilities
Company were merged into Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. The four schedules for gas service as in effect prior to the merger were continued in effect after the merger as schedules of Public Service. The proposed new schedule will replace these existing schedules, but that only one schedule and uniform rates will apply to the entire territory now served by Public Service. It is estimated on the basis of use during 1950, that the proposed uniform rates will not result in an increase in the Company's revenue.
In general reduced charges are provided for residential, commercial and firm industrial service, and increased charges are provided under the interruptible rates and to certain large industrial users under the off-peak rate.
The present rate for interruptible gas service expire on May 1, 1951, and the availability of this service is extended until May 1, 1952, under the increased rates contained in this filing.

Further information with respect thereto may be obtained either directly from this Company or by addressing the Secretary of the Illinois Commerce Commission at Springfield, Illinois.

A copy of the proposed change in the schedules may be inspected by any interested party at any business office of this Company.

Tither Reward

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — There's $100 on deposit in a bank here which can be claimed by anyone. Anyone, that is, who tries nothing for one year and finds that God does not keep His promise to take adequate care of the giver. In five years there have been no claimants.

The Rev. DeWitt Safford, who deposited the money, recently renewed the offer and promised to include the five years' interest.

A tither is one who gives 10 per cent of his income to the church. Safford reports his church has 178 tithers out of a communicant membership of 481.

None of them, he says, has shown an interest in his $100.

Switzerland was founded in a meeting of the representatives of three cantons on a meadow called Rutili in 1307.

Labor, Agriculture Critical Of Controls on Food Prices

NEW YORK, (AP)—Food price controls may raise as many disputes as the alay.

The most ticklish subject—meat prices—are left out of the orders the Office of Price Stabilization. And the debate over meat prices is likely to get hotter before meat control orders are drafted.

The housewife should be pleased if rulings to limit groceries' mark-ups on about 60 per cent of the food they sell will mean a halt in food costs that have spurred during the Korean war. But she may be loud in her disappointment if they end by freezing food prices at high levels.

The agriculture department thinks farm prices will climb another five per cent this year.

Many farm organizations object to any subsidy plan. And livestock raisers are particularly critical of any attempt to control prices at the ranch and feed-pen levels.

Pork Chops Ahead They contend that price ceilings, if imposed, would lead farmers to sell breeding stock rather than chance getting good prices for the young stock they might raise.

Use Deep Freeze In Excavation

BUDAPEST, (AP)—An official news agency here reports that a deep freezing method is being used in the construction of Budapest's new subway.

Engineers here have always been sore pressed by the problem of subsoil water. They are now pumping a certain liquid, not identified by the agency, into the earth near the proposed subway shaft.

Mother Finds Her Lost Son

SINGAPORE—(AP)—A mother has found her son after a 10-year search, but it may still be a long time before she sees him. The woman is Fukuyae Kaniko, a Japanese who married an American dredgemaster attached to a British tin dredging company in Malaya. The boy is John Palmstrom, who was born a fortnight after the death of his father 15 years ago.

ated with other school children to Japan. After the war, the mother started an intensive search for her son. Finally, she learned her son was alive in Japan, living with an uncle and under the name of Kodako Kaniko.

With the outbreak of World War II, the mother was arrested and interned. The boy went to a Japanese school in Singapore until 1945. He then was evacuated.

The format of the modern newspaper was first established in Venice in 1566, says the Book of Knowledge, when government-sponsored news sheets were displayed on the streets.
